

Enlightened Responsibility Through Your Convictions, Our Memories, Your Sacrifices

By: A.X. Bueno

After everything I've done I should have really expected this Still I knew this was the right, no the responsible thing to do after I made that spell go amiss
I know you say 'expect disappointed that way you're never disappointed' but I can't help but be just a bit
I was hoping I'd manage to make everything okay the way heroes are supposed to
And in a way I did with a lot of help from others along the way including other me's and definitely you
But by the end the cost was almost too high; my Aunt May, almost all of reality and your memories of all we've been through She used to say 'when you help someone you help everyone' and that's what I chose to do
I wanna believe I did what was best to help everybody especially you and Ned By truly starting anew and going through with the spell that has erased other's memories of my life disconnecting every thread Considering how another Spider-Man needed to catch you when everything was getting chaotic
What could have happened simply filled me with too much dread
There's too much darkness I could fall into that we both saw that day
But that's over with now after all I cured the goblin thanks to the intervention of those other Peter Parkers and the example of May I've got to keep what she stood for going even if she is ...gone Regarding you I hope to make you remember me again someday
But for now it's okay that you've moved on You helped me deal with a wizard
Fight a lizard along with an octopus, sand and electricity man I may not be amazing right now but I can still try to be as Spider-Man and Peter Parker again doing all I can
One day I hope that I can give you this letter at a better time for you to remember again
In the meantime I know you're safe MJ without the issue of being known as "Spider-Man's girlfriend"
You truly are someone special to me which is why I know you'll do amazing in college
As for me I'm starting anew creating a new home for myself and I know for us at least this is far from the end