

Recovering first you try to lead your companion out, but it soon becomes apparent that the dragon had a far better memory of the route than you do.

Dropping behind you follow the dragon back along the twisting passageways until you can smell the fresh air.

“Stop.” it tells you, taking several long sniffs then kneels down, “Get on.” it commands.