

Noland is in his room getting ready for bed. He got in his sleeping clothes on and he went to bed. Later, Noland was still asleep until he felt something on his shoulder very itchy. He stand up and he also felt something growing on arm something flat. He scratch on his arm and it felt very rough.

Noland got up and see green skin on his arm, and it spread throughout his entire body. Then, his body is changing. His head was changing as hair fell out and a crest grew out in place. His face pushed forward growing a beak as teeth are gone. His nose and ears disappear replaced with holes. His both arm to his hands grew air flap wings and his hands reshape having three fingers instead of five. His clothes are getting to big for him and starting to fall off. His legs changed having them hinded. Finally, he grew a tail from his back. The pain has already stopped and his changes are finally complete.

Noland stood up on his two legs and he looked at himself and he was turned into a Pteranodon. He went to a mirror and see his wings as he raised them and turned around at his back seeing his tail. He opened his beak seeing he has no teeth, unfortunately. He was fascinated that he is a Pteranodon which is not a dinosaur and is a flying prehistoric reptile. He looked at his wings and he flapps them up and down making some wind and having to be in the air for awhile. When he stops flapping, he lands down. He finds this fun doing this.

Noland walks towards the window and see he is not far from down. He opened the window and stood up and he jumps. Noland uses his wings and started flying. He was happy that he has the ability to fly. He flew around places in the city and he squealed the admiration of flying.

Noland flew down landing on a branch tree. He sees the stars and the full moon in the sky. After watching the sky, he flew away back to his house. He swooped in the window and landed softly on the floor. He had a blast flying around town. He went to bed and went to sleep as a pteranodon being covered up with his wings as a quilt.