

Desired Tales #20

Corbin decided to spend some time at the park. He was minding his own business until he suddenly caught the glimpse of an anthropomorphic lizard! Corbin stared at the creature. The lizard had the features of an iguana. Corbin wondered if the green lizard had just come from a movie set or if it was a cosplay of a character Corbin didn't know about. The iguana was wearing shorts and a shirt, no shoes, and Corbin could see a long thick tail that was between the shorts and shirt. He also saw the peculiar iguana head and the long feet with curved claws as toenails

Corbin was mesmerized by the wiggling tail. Corbin wondered what it would feel like to touch the tail. He didn't know what material the tail was made out of. Would it be a squishy tail or would the tail maintain its shape when squeezed? Questions flooded Corbin's mind. How did the tail move? Was the lizard supposed to be a male or female iguana? Corbin didn't know the gender of the person wearing the costume. He couldn't tell if the scales were glued on to the skin of the person or if it was a costume the person was wearing. Corbin simply watched the iguana from a distance before going home.

Corbin's curiosity grew stronger. He thought about the iguana but resisted the urge to search about it on the internet. Corbin figured if the iguana was for a movie or tv show, he'd learn about it eventually, so there was no point in wasting time searching on the internet. He didn't want to spend time searching for something that might not even show up in a search due to being so recent.

Corbin saw the iguana again at the park the following week. The iguana looked the same as last time, except possibly the clothes might have been different. Corbin didn't have a photographic memory of the clothes due to being so distracted by the long thick tail. Corbin wanted to approach the iguana, but Corbin didn't know what he would say to the lizard. Would Corbin say something embarrassing? What if Corbin said something that offends the iguana, which could lead to a fight! Corbin didn't want to be in a pointless brawl. Besides, the iguana's nails looked sharp and Corbin did not want to get scratched.

Another week went by. Corbin saw the iguana at the park for the third time. Corbin realized this happened too often for the iguana to be somebody cosplaying for a convention. The iguana was also not a one-time character or extra in a tv show, commercial, or movie. Corbin tried to eliminate all the possibilities in his head for why the iguana was dressed that way. Corbin knew he should simply go to the iguana and ask why the iguana is an iguana.

Corbin was sitting on a bench (that's behind the iguana) when Corbin decided he was going to speak to the iguana. Corbin stood up and walked closer to the iguana. Corbin could see the iguana's tail in front of him. It looked so thick! Corbin wanted to touch the tail! He wanted to know what the scaly tail would feel like!

Corbin couldn't resist that tail! Corbin knew he should speak to the iguana first, but instead his hands reached from the tail! His hands squeezed the tail! Suddenly, the tail became detached from the iguana's body! There was no blood. The iguana ran away without looking back!

The tail stayed in Corbin's hands. His hands didn't drop the tail despite the tail squirming! He didn't know what to do at first. He wondered if the iguana would want the tail back. The tail must have been some kind of animatronic if it could move after being detached from the rest of the costume. The tail might have been valuable to the iguana. Corbin decided to take the tail home.

Corbin kept the iguana tail in his room. He enjoyed looking at the tail. The tail no longer moved on its own. Corbin liked touching the tail. He yawned unexpectedly. He thought about getting some sleep. He wondered if he could use the tail as a pillow. He realized it was a silly idea due to the tail having some spikes. Although the spikes were small and only occurred on one side. All Corbin had to do was not use the side of the pillow with spikes on it.

Corbin laid the tail on the bed and made sure it wasn't on the side with the spikes poking out. Corbin yawned again. He became too tired to do anything besides thinking of sleep. He got in bed and rested his head on the tail. The tail was thick and soft enough to properly use as a pillow. Corbin quickly fell asleep with a smile on his face.

Corbin had pleasant dreams about the tail. He didn't wake up while in REM sleep. His skin began to change while he was asleep. Green iguana scales grew on his arms and legs. The scales spread and scratched the clothing he was too tired to take off before sleeping. His fingernails became curved claws.

Corbin's claws scratched at his shirt and the fabric covering his crotch. The clothing were ripped apart once his claws dug into them. The scales on his body prevented him from getting cut or taking any damage.

His hand found its way to his penis. He jerked his flaccid dick while sleeping. The cock had precum appearing out of the tip before the penis suddenly retreated into a newly formed slit! Corbin passionately moaned in his sleep. Seconds later, a hemipenes emerged from the slit.

Corbin's head shapeshifted into a scaly iguana muzzle as he continued to moan. His hands touched his cocks. He grabbed and squeezed his swelling rods! Corbin's deep breathing got louder as his hands moved up and down his dicks. His hands let go of the rods. The dicks were still erect and twitching upwards. Corbin's feet were changing into long scaly iguana feet with curved claws.

A tail was starting to develop between Corbin's legs! Corbin turned sideways while still asleep. The tail grew longer and thicker! Spikes were forming a trail on Corbin's back and tail. Corbin turned over again while in bed, but this time, his face was pressed into the discarded tail pillow. His dicks squirted cum while rubbing against the bed. Corbin's anthropomorphic iguana body was getting thicker in all the right places. His arms and legs became perfect.

Corbin woke up hours later. His claws scratched the bed as he yawned while becoming awake. He turned over and felt something huge smacking the bed. It was like a leg but different! He looked down and saw his long thick iguana tail! He quickly noticed his body was covered in iguana scales! Corbin didn't panic. He thought this must be a dream. He spotted two morning woods on his body. His dicks throbbed! He was perplexed by what he was seeing and the sensations he was feeling.

Corbin decided he needed to talk to the iguana, but first, he needed to relieve the pulsating feeling in his cocks! He grabbed his cocks and started jerking himself off! Corbin stayed in bed while getting used to his new body.