

VRCHAT – MOVIE NIGHT 6

The night begins strong with Magnus (otter), Wat (TripRat in his rat-taur Wat model), and Murdling, a badger who sits down with literally thunderous force.

The awesome thing about Wat's model is that there are four 'seats' on his taurback, allowing people to ride him!

Did you know that you can copy/clone others' models?

THE RAT STACK BEGINS

Wat here, taking over from Balros for a bit. Rat-taur rat-stack taur-stack, initiate!

R.A.T – Rising Altitude Tower

Why have one massive rat when you can have a half-dozen massive rats?

Kah, beholding what he has wrought (he made every model you see in this picture).

Look away, Lupi! Stacks of large rats are hazardous to your health.

Wat, signing off, but expect even more rat in the future.

Balros returns! Though it looks like the temporary Wat takeover has left some... additional junk in the tauric trunk.

Komari found a cute new deer avatar. Check out those rainbow eyes!

More folks pour in as we prepare for tonight's movie. So far, Murdling still holds the record on doing the splits.

Once people begin to pour into the theater, it can be challenging to capture the bum rush to seats. But, I'm getting better at it!

I am getting better at this, right, Magnugs?

Don't give me that cute look. Oh, my finger is in the way of the lens? Dammit!

Tonight's seating arrangement demonstrates that we still have a pervasive rat infestation.

Half of us forgot to turn the world volume back up so here we are, zipping out of our seats to set the sound properly.

Trip trying to take my camera.

"Hey, Trip, you know how we're both rodents, right?" "Yeah?" "And you know this one bird that likes to hang around us?" "Yeah... suspicious." "Yeah. Suspicious."

Back to our seats, just in time for the opening credits for Robin Hood: Men in Tights.

For this movie night, we're joined by an adorabold kobold, Drakon. They're sitting on the armrest between seats.

I managed to catch a good sneaky photo. Otter in my lap, kobold on one arm, yeen and badger close by. We're all paying attention, we swear!

The movie's just about to end and I realize how BRIGHT some models are. They stand out even in total darkness – it's great!

What is just as challenging as getting a group photo of folks entering the theater?
Getting a group photo as people practically SPRINT to leave the theater!

Fortunately, sometimes some folk choose to mill about a bit. This opportunity can't be passed up.

What also can't be passed up is the opportunity to hug your local minideer. Trip and Riz look cute together.

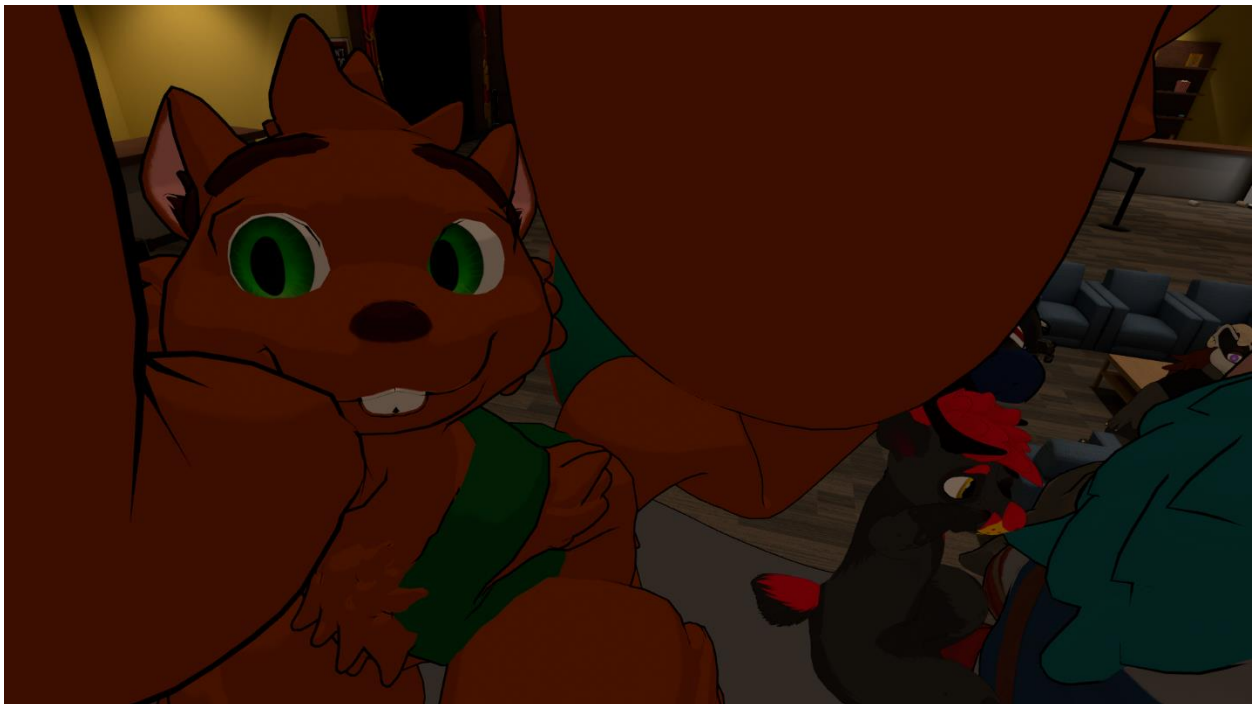

Trip doing up Riz's hairstyle.

Annd Trip transforms into Wat, giving lots of folks a ride on his tauric back.

Squirrels should be real good at climbing, so let's get a picture from a better vantage point!

"Gee, Balros, why is your tail so big?"

"Gee, friend, why is your tail getting bigger?"

Floofy tails cause space problems.

It's a delicate balancing act, for one taur to do a two-legged taur-stand on the back of another taur!

Well folks, here's to another great Movie Night. Thanks to those who joined and for those who read these photo journals!