
An archaeological breakthrough (Aerodactyl TF)

You let out a sigh. The other archaeologists never take you seriously. Always mocking you because you've never had a big breakthrough yet.

But you won't give up! You have to believe you'll find something to be your breakthrough!

That's why you're now inside of a cave looking around. There's a rumor that there was an odd stone sighted in here.

After a long time searching. You're about to give up. When you see something shine in your flashlight.

You run towards it in hopes of it being something you've never seen before.

It's a piece of amber. The biggest one you've ever seen. It's so big you have to pick it up with both hands. Just to be able to lift it!

You inspect it while it's in your hands. Wondering what kind of pokemon it's from.

Suddenly it shines in a bright light. You close your eyes from the blinding light. Then it dies down just as suddenly as it glowed.

Opening your eyes you notice something strange on your hands.

You let out a gasp as you see scales starting to form on your hands. Dropping the amber in shock you watch as your fingers merge together to form three.

It breaks as it hits the ground.

Arms growing thinner as a purple membrane grows out from under it. Leaving you with arm-like wings. Like a wyvern.

You look at it with a gaping mouth. This is unbelievable! The changes keep on going.

Gray scales growing from your arm to the rest of your body.

Neck growing longer, a blunt spike forms on your back. Growing through your shirt.

Your face pushed out into a long rigid snout. Two horns grow out the back of your head.

Nose shrinking into two slits. Teeth growing sharper.

Hair falling out as the scales cover your entire face.

You feel a pressure forming at the base of your spine. It grows and grows until a large tail with an arrow shaped tip bursts through your pants.

Your legs grow shorter. Feet cracking and changing shape.

Leaving you with three toed talons instead.

As the changes finish you take a moment to account what has happened.

You've just turned into an Aerodactyl.

Your half destroyed shirt is the only piece of clothing that managed to stay on you.

The amber lays broken on the ground.

Maybe this is the breakthrough you've been waiting for?

The other's will have to take you seriously now!

There's never been an Aerodactyl archaeologist before. Besides, think of all the breakthroughs you might be able to make with your new body!

You stumble excitedly out of the cave. Not used to your new body yet.

Maybe you'll really be able to make it as an archaeologist!