

Blaze began to salivate at the sight of the stadium, all 65000 people inside had seen what he had done to their city so far and began trying to escape. Unfortunately with the giant crowds all trying to run out at the same time it became too crowded and there was no way that everyone could get out before the giant stallion made it to them.

Within twenty seconds the 250 foot tall stallion stood at the stadium and licked his lips.

"Cute, you think you can escape." He chuckled a little and to make sure no more humans could escape him he circled around the stadium and dragged his forehooves deep into the asphalt, creating a 30 foot deep trench that no human could cross without falling in and most likely dying. He casually hopped into the stadium as he finished and landed on the field, splattering the sports teams instantly under his hooves. "I guess I should thank you all," He started. "I mean, packing into this stadium sure saves me a lot of work." He scanned the seats and smiled at the fleeing humans. His ears twitched as all of their screams were heard along with other sounds of chaos. "Hmmm... Where to start...?" He mumbled and glanced at the most dense side of the stadium. "Perfect." He took two large steps and stood over 5000 scared humans. They all begged him not to hurt them and many got on their knees, hoping in vain that praying and begging him might make him change his mind about devouring them. He slowly leaned his head down towards them and stared at them. His large fiery eyes staring into the souls of every single man, woman, and child below him. He slowly licked his lips and let a few globs of drool splash down upon the terrified humans. A hundred or so were hit and fell from the impact and were flushed down the rows of seats. Deciding that he had teased his snacks enough he opened his maw and prepared to feast. Blaze's warm and oddly sweet breath hit the humans, causing them to panic more and many tried one last time to flee, but their fates were sealed.

Blaze took one long lick of the crowd, instantly 50 or so humans got caught under it, many popping into gore from the weight and force of the upward lick, and the rest could only scream out as they got stuck to the massive tongue. Blaze let out a happy grunt at the taste of them. As much as he loved their screams and weak squirms, he knew it was best to just start pigging out, he had the rest of the humans to have fun with, so why keep them waiting?

he retracted his tongue and hummed at the strange but very delectable taste they had. He considered swallowing them all, but wanting to taste them more he decided to slowly chew them. He smirks down at the rest of his current meal and without saying a single word everyone knew what he meant. "You are next."

The screams slowly died down in his mouth as his massive chompers tore flesh, crunched bones, and effortlessly severed limbs. Now with a mouthful of a nice human paste he decided to swallow. A visible lump traveled down his throat and splashed into his stomach as the crowds wailed and sobbed for those who had died painfully for nothing more than Blaze's hunger and his sick amusement. He patted his belly and smiled widely, blood coating his teeth and many limbs stuck in between them. "Wow, you guys are so fucking good! But it takes more than one mouthful to stuff me up." He chuckled and used his magic to lift another 50 or so humans. "Don't worry, I won't chew you guys. You get to dissolve in my stomach acid, sounds fun huh?" he teased. He then casually popped them all in his maw and rolled his tongue over them, pinning them all to the roof of his mouth. He felt a few pop and slowly released them to fall into the pools of saliva. After a moment or two of enjoying their screams and feeling their weak hands trying to pry his mouth open or attack his tongue he tipped his head back very slow to make them slide back and fall down his throat. Instantly 30 fell down the dark abyss, the others held on to his teeth, gums, tongue, or anything else they could to avoid their deaths. Blaze growled lowly and deafened them all before he took a little bite, severing many arms or legs. His mouth was now full of screams of agony as the humans who had lost limbs sobbed and screamed. Now satisfied Blaze easily swallowed them. He couldn't help but slightly admire their attempt to survive. As for the few under his tongue he decided that they could drown in his saliva or be crushed by his massive muscle, he could care less which.

for a few more minutes Blaze grazed the tiny humans and with little to no effort swallowed humans by the dozens, soon over 1000 people lay dead floating in stomach acid, waiting to be dissolved and absorbed for energy. Blaze let out a monstrous burp and patted his belly. "I'm full and i still have so many of you tiny humans to play with!" he said eagerly. He scanned the crowds, many chose to accept their fates and stop fleeing, they would go first. He sat back down and grabbed them in his magic and brought them before him. "Hmmm... what to do with you..." He said and tapped his chin thoughtfully. "I've stomped, eaten, and fucked you..." he smirked evilly down at them. and slowly sets them before his hind hooves. "Clean them, and if i see so much as a tiny smear of dirt, you'll all wish i'll make your deaths quick." He threatened.

Instantly a hundred or so humans began working on his hooves. a dozen took the sole while a few took the frog on each hoof. while the others climbed up and worked on the toe. He saw a few who thought it was smart to disobey him and to show the others what would happen if they followed their examples he cruelly lifted them up and began to heat their little bodies in his magic, letting them scream and beg. He heard them begging and telling him they would obey, but it was too late for that. He watched with a small smile as they melted and then exploded into gorey paste which got all over his sweatshirt and face.

"Nasty shits... now i'll have to clean it..." He grumbled and licked the blood from his muzzle. Once Blaze noticed his hooves were clean enough he conjured up a large box and set the humans in it who had obeyed him and served him properly. "Good humans, you will have the honor of being my new hoof slaves." He said happily and closed the box, poking some air holes with his horn. "Heh, being a god is fun, and i bet i'll get even bigger soon!" he set the box somewhere safe and stood up and smirked at the rest of the humans. "Might as well finish you off." He said and began charging his horn. The thousands of humans left could only sob and hug their loved ones as they awaited the giant stallion to kill them as he saw fit. there was no point running or begging. their lives, their dreams, meant nothing now. Blaze let out an evil laugh as a large beam of pure energy blasts one fourth of the stadium out of existence. the concentrated beam evaporated anyone in its range instantly, much like a nuclear bomb, but much more powerful. the smell of burnt flesh filled the air as 20000 or so were destroyed instantly. Blaze felt no remorse for what he had just done. All those people who had never wronged him.. And he killed them because he knew he could, and he enjoyed every second of it. He was finally the one in control. He could decided whether they lived or died. and if anyone disagreed with it, they would die like everyone else.

"Haha! Pathetic! You know what? You all aren't even worth my time anymore." He says and hops out of the stadium, his four hooves slamming onto dozens of parked cars and flattening them. Once again the pink aura surrounded him and pure pleasure filled him. "Ooooh... Come on... Big growth spurt..." He moaned out in excitement as his hooves began filling more of the parking lot of the stadium. "Aaah!!" he let out a large whiney of pleasure as his cock swelled and became rock hard. He closed his eyes and hoped he would be able to hold off until he stopped growing, he didn't want to wear himself out, not yet. As the aura faded he opened his eyes. "Hey, where did the stadium- Oh!" He glanced down at the stadium, which was now the size of his hoof, maybe a little smaller. He stood at an estimated three miles tall. He stared wide eyed at the large amount of growth that he received. "Well, that was a nice surprise." He said with a chuckle. the 35000 or so survivors could only stare in awe as the godly unicorn smirked down at them all. "Lets see... spare you... or stomp you... tough one." He said with a happy sigh and slowly lifted a hoof over the entire stadium. Every single human began to panic once more and tried running in vain from the gods giant hoof. He laughed evilly and slowly lowered his hoof down, feeling the walls begin to crack and crumble under the weight. "Do me a favor and die." He hissed and slammed his hoof down hard, causing a large shock wave to spread out and shatter windows all over town and blow many humans in the streets away. Anyone left in the stadium let out one last scream as they were all cut short and replaced with the sound of crunching metal and cracking bones. They were all ground out of existence in under one quarter of a second. Blaze grinded his hoof to slaughter anyone who may have survived the stomp, even though he was positive he got them all. He lifted his hoof and looked at the large crater that was once the cities proud stadium, now it was just a hole filled with the smeared corpses of dozens of thousands of innocent people. Blaze casually licked the blood and rubble from his hoof and smiled. "At least you all could serve me all in death, as a tiny snack." He said and finished licking the remains from his hoof. "Now, to finish this stupid town..." He mumbled and turned his head to see another large city only a few miles away, maybe a minute or two of a walk for him. "Awesome. Time to try out my new powers~" He said and smirked to himself as he began to smush the rest of the city under his hooves. Buildings and humans offering little to no resistance as within a minute and a half the few hundred remaining buildings, and the 75000 survivors still trying to escape, were now gone, grinded away under a true gods hooves. He turned back to the new city and laughed a little. "I'm coming for you, bugs."