

VTQ: A Tight Squeeze

It seemed like such a fun idea yesterday to camp out in the woods for a night, to have some personal alone time and now I fear no one may ever find me. It had gone so well up until I tripped over that large snake, before I could even recover I felt the smooth scales of the creature coiling around my body. The thick coils of the snake, squeezed over my body and I tried my best to break free of them, but the large creature was too much for me.

With the snake's coils wrapping around nearly all of my body, feeling only my feet and small sections across my body not covered by my captor. The snake continued to work it's body around me, feeling the smooth, scaly skin slither across me, my clothes all but ripped off from the snake's thick body tearing them apart while going through them.

Seconds seemed to last for minutes with my breath restricted by the tight coils squeezing around me. My eyes having a hard time staying open as the lack of oxygen made it hard to stay conscious, that was until I saw it. The snake's head in front of my own, it's tongue flicking out of it's mouth, tasting the air around me as well as my scent. My eyes opening wide upon seeing the large mouth open, the pink interior filled with tiny, curved back fangs. My world enveloped in darkness moments later as the jaws enveloped my head, feeling the tiny fangs dig into me.

Knowing it was almost futile to try and pull out as the fangs curved back as they were would only dig into my flesh and prevent me from doing so. Doing my best to fight against the coils that bound my body, trying to make the snake let me go. Seeing light one last time as the jaws opened up slightly to take me deeper inside, the fangs helping the creature pull me in further, my head now inside it's throat.

I could already feel the digestive fluid inside the snake getting onto my head, leaving a tingling, numbing sensation. Fighting against the coils seemed useless as I couldn't move more than a couple of inches between the coils slight movements and squeezing. The lack of oxygen making everything I did even harder on my body.

The snake slowly worked on getting my wide shoulders into it's jaws completely, knowing once they were inside it would be much easier for the creature to fully consume me. Feeling the coils around my chest slowly starting to loosen up, once my shoulders pushed their way into the snake's gullet.

Whimpering quietly to myself as I all but lost hope, unable to move both inside and outside my predator. The more I fought it the weaker I seemed to become with each passing second. The soft squishy insides, squeezing and pulling at my body as more of the digestive fluid got onto me. My body getting pulled in faster, the more the snake consumed, having already gotten past the hard parts.

Still my body squirmed on instinct, trying to fight my inevitable death and before I knew it my hips were pulled into the snake's gullet. This had all but sealed my fate, if it wasn't already when the snake had coiled around my body in the first place. The snake barely even cared to coil it's long body around my legs at the point, feeling the coils of the snake only around my feet at this point.

Minutes passed, though as far as I knew it really could of only of been seconds as the jaws worked over the rest of my body. The insides of the snake squeezing my body as hard as it's coils did on the outside. With my feet getting pulled inside, I could feel the hot, squishy interior around my entire body, the rippling muscles inside pulling me deeper into the coils at a slow pace.

My body tried it's best to wiggle free of the tight flesh, squeezing and curving around it but lacked the strength to even interrupt the snakes movement. I was surprised I could even breathe at this point, having been in the snake for as long as I have been. The fluid increasing the deeper I was pulled until finally I settled, having reached the stomach.

There I could feel the digestive fluid finally start to set in fully, my body going completely numb as the snake's long and slow digestive process started to work on my body. I'm glad that I couldn't see inside the snake or else I'd fear it'd only make things worse. I wonder how much longer I'll last and have to...