

As Nate slowly crept along the length of the house to Kai's room, he was slowly changing. First, it was the fur. It crept up his body. As he got closer and closer, more happened. The fur spread. His legs and arms slimmed and shortened. His hands and feet split into three toes, each of which ballooned out to form digitigrade paws. Pink pads formed on the bottoms. He shrank to the size of an Eevee. His gait changed to tottering on all fours. Then, a very fluffy tail sprouted from his backside, brown with a cream tip. Now, as he approached Kai's room, his head started to change. First, his neck shortened so it was not visible. His auburn hair turned to brown fur and disappeared. More fur spread up to his ears, which moved to the top of his head and elongated, drooping in the process. Fur covered them, brown on the edge, and black inside. His nose turned black and wet. Then, his face grew out into a short muzzle. His front teeth sharpened. Then, the fur covered up the rest of his head. His eyes gained a sort of glimmer and turned black, with white pupils. Lastly, his voice box changed to only be able to speak like an Eevee. The change was complete. He quietly opened the door, because Kai often left it cracked, to let air in. He signaled Miz to go back, because he needed somebody to be with him at Christmas. He quietly closed it back, and crept toward the box. He nudged the top open just so he could climb inside and close the box after. He finally found his comfy spot, and went to sleep.