

The dark wizard sat upon the conquered throne; a look of sheer amusement on his. His takeover of Hyrule Castle and the surrounding town was a complete success. The hero was nowhere to be found. The soldiers, king and princess were no match for him and effortlessly sealed in another realm. There was nothing that could stop him now.

Supposedly.

+++++++

Not too far away from the castle town; Midna, in her more elusive imp form, sat on a hill which provided an excellent view of the castle. She raised her arms to stretch with a yawn before resuming her gaze upon the royal palace. “Honestly, that castle is nothing but problems. I swear it gets taken over every month. The princess gets captured, heroes come and go. Can’t they do anything right?”

“Oh well, if you want something done right, you have to do it yourself...” Midna said with a devilish grin as the shades of her body started to darken, her piercing eyes started to glow, and the air around her started to rumble. She pulled massive amounts of energy into herself and then released it with intense force. The markings on her body shined brightly as her body started to swell in size; growing at a steady pace.

“Now then...” said the giant, and still growing, twilight imp, “Let’s have some fun.”

Which one thunderous step after another, which was impressive considering her light form, Midna marched toward Hyrule Castle, growing larger in size with each powerful step.

The sight of such a growing creature doesn’t go unseen nor does her intense, ground rattling footfalls go unheard and unfelt by the new tyrant in town; the wizard watching from the tallest tower, gazing angrily at the twilight that dare attempt to thwart him.

The gates were lifted and the bridge was drawn, allowing hundreds of the wizard’s forces to pour out and take down the imp before she got closer to the castle.

“Well isn’t that cute,” Midna remarked as she saw the (relatively) small army of black mutants and monsters come out to face her, “How nice of you to bring out the welcome wagon.” She took another step forward, increasing in size even further. She loomed over the masses, already hundreds of feet tall and still getting larger.

The army charged in immediately, but they were too little and too late. Even more as the precious seconds wasted closing the gap allowed Midna to grow even larger; the tallest of soldiers now hardly able to clear the height of her toes. As expected, their attacks were hardly felt by the Twilight Princess, and a simple idle flick of her toe sent hundreds of them flying.

With a devilish grin, Midna slowly raised her still growing foot over the army, chuckling to herself, "I'll give you credit for trying, but with no Triforce and no Shadows, do you really think you can stop me? Hah!"

With a scrunch and a wriggle of her toes, Midna slammed her foot down upon the forces, driving the wizard's forced deep into the lands of Hyrule under the force and weight of her giant black sole.

"Heh," Midna chuckled, watching plumes of black, wispy smoke flow out from between her toes and under her foot, signifying that they had been effortlessly defeated. "Tch, you guys weren't so tough at all huh? Ohh well."

With that minor annoyance out of the way, Midna turned her attention upon the castle town, and most notably, the castle itself. Now being larger than life, the tallest of the castle towers barely cleared her ankle; and with that tower being twig-like in comparison, it was hardly worth noticing.

"This castle has been nothing but trouble," said Midna as she gingerly took one step over the castle, clumps of dirt and grass raining down over the town as she did so, and stood with the town between her feet. "You know what this place needs? A more fitting ruler to sit upon the throne."

With a smirk and a giggle, Midna took a few steps forward and slowly bent over, shaking her large, round rump over the town, "And now presenting, the NEW Queen of Hyrule!" Midna dropped to her knees and planted her rear right on top of town; castle and all now buried deep into a heart shaped crater under her butt.

"Mmm, now that's more like it," Midna said with the utmost satisfaction as she playfully bounced and wiggled her rear upon where Hyrule Castle Town used to stand. She then sat back and crossed her legs, grinning widely at her accomplishment. "Princess of the Twilight and Queen of Hyrule. Wonder what he would think if he saw me now..."