

"The beautiful girl and the broken" There was once a girl Beautiful she was With her long blond hair Captivating green eyes So kind So perfect She found a broken girl Damaged she was Been thrown away Stabbed Torn A mess really But the beautiful girl said "I don't care what you have been through, I still think your perfect" The broken thing she was never heard those words So strange So inviting So kind As time went on They grew so close So inseparable It was amazing really But as the beautiful girl grew up she needed more More than the broken girl could ever give The beautiful girl was moving on Being happy Now that's all the broken girl wanted Was her Friend Her love To be happy She was reluctant to let her leave This saddened the beautiful girl Because she still loved the broken one But needed to move on "We had a good run" she said And Slowly the broken one Understood If you love her Let her go And she loved her So she let her go The broken one realized Her job was done She made the girl of her dreams happy So as she watched the Young boy take away her beautiful girl She could only cry And wait for her to return Knowing full well That she was not coming back But she did The beautiful girl wanted to take the broken girl with her However the broken girl was tired She couldn't As long as her beautiful girl was happy She was at peace And with that she fell apart Never to be put back together But she was at peace with that Her job as done She could fall apart And stop fighting Her last words where "I love you my beautiful girl" And she fell apart ... I never told you the beautiful girls name have I? A wonder full name at that Macey ... Oh the broken one? Victoria Quite a strange name But it fit The two fit The two loved The two became one That one will always live on in the beautiful girl As long as Macey was happy So was Victoria That's how my story ends With a beautiful girl And a broken soul Forever as one <3