

One day, in the jungle, an anthropomorphic grey fox wearing a green old timey bathing suit and green swim cap was walking along a dirt trail. It was Ghostfox. "This jungle is huge," he thought to himself. Unbeknownst to him, some yellowish eyes were staring at him. "What a strange man-cub" said a whispering voice. A while later, Ghostfox was near some bushes when he heard them rustling. He jumped up in defence. He was ready to fight when he saw a frog leap out. He let out a sigh in relief. He turned around when he saw a python slithering down a tree. His eyes were the same ones that eyed him. It was Kaa. "Hello there, weird man cub" said the python. He watched as the fox jumped. "Did I scare you?" asked the python. "No, you just startled me," said Ghostfox. "Anywho, I better be on my way" he said. "Before you go, i need to ask you something," said Kaa. "what is it?" asked Ghostfox. "Do I have something in my eyes?" asked Kaa. Ghostfox shrugged and sighed as he looked into the python's eyes. "I don't see anything," said the fox. "How about now?" asked Kaa as he did his hypnotising act with his eyes. Ghostfox suddenly had his eyes following the colors of Kaa's eyes. Suddenly his eyelids began to feel heavy. Kaa was coiled around the fox. "Now's my chance" said the snake. He opened his jaw wide. He put the head of the fox in his mouth. A few seconds later he was up to his shoulders. Soon up to the chest of Ghostfox he had his prey kneeling. "Why is it suddenly soft and wet?" asked Ghostfox who was starting to come through. Halfway done being eaten, Ghostfox let off a look of surprise instead of fear oddly. "This is strangely nice," he thought. As his butt disappeared from view, Ghostfox embraced the lining surrounding him. Kaa lifted his head in the air and the legs of his meal were joined with it. "Down I go" thought Ghostfox. Kaa was kinda confused because his prey wasn't moving like he was trying to escape. Later up to his meal's knees, the python looked to the sky. Soon up to his feet, the snake soon let one final motion of swallowing. Soon the toes of Ghostfox slid into the mouth as the python closed his mouth. "Whoa" said the fox as he slid down the throat of his capturer. Kaa looked behind him to see the fox was nothing more than a lump in his stomach. Ghostfox decided to take a rest in the cozy and comfortable stomach and used his mucus soaked bathing suit as warmth.