- The Planet of Alexandrite lies within the red belt galaxy being near the center of the galaxy being close to other planets seen before, Like Gaia Gloria and Omicron.
- The planet itself appears as an earth like planet (but is quite bigger) with vast blue oceans and large continental landmasses and such, it has two rings around it with three moons surrounding the planet.
- The inhabitants of the planet are roughly 50% of dragons, with other species like canines, felines and primates, with not very many humans as they are treated with curiosity as there was an instance of humans on the planet before leaving thousands of years ago.
- The Grand Temple of Livingston- no dragon gods were resting here, but was built as a way to pass the role of emperor/empress, and is where the pendants of the leadership dragons were created eons ago, the pendants act like keys to the other temples namely the resting places of the dragon gods. This temple is themed like a clock with statues and recordings of all the gods and the names of the head dragons edged into here, with the center room the portal room the gateway into the world of the dragon gods and is where all dragons get their magic from and this connection can never be severed.
- All of the dragons have wolf-like ears, visible fangs and a tail often having a diamond clover or moon "spike" on the tail but is often random.
- Not many modern dragons use a palisman however Steven and Brewster Livingston have one
- The Dragons of Alexandrite are more likely to be bisexual or gay than straight, moreover people have accepted people who are polyamorous transgender or non binary.
- The people of Alexandrite are fairly liberal with conservatism being heavily stigmatized
- It's common for normal dragons to craft their own magic tools, as for thousands of years they have created familiars also known as palisman to cast magic with, and often are various smaller animals and bugs to perform elemental magic with and basic spells and are sentient.
- Every dragon has claws even if they are a normal dragon or not and are treated like fingernails/toenails on their hands and feet and can be unsheathed when needed to.
- Palisman exist on the planet like their own species of animals due to the magic nature of the planet but they can be created by certain materials found across the planet
- The average dragon life span is 107 but their lives can be extended longer with magic with the longest living dragon to be recorded to be 151 years old.
- The reason why the Livingston family has ascended to the reigning monarchs as their ancestor ended the dragon savage ages by introducing a new magic system that stopped the fighting and appointed the various head dragons to lead clans that has also stayed within their family bloodline and have historically always been close.

- There have been female head dragons and a few female empresses before, but unfortunately they have passed away including Bewster's mother who was an empress that was as recent as two years ago.
- As long as a dragon is able to digest something they can perform magic as long as they aren't a normal dragon.
- Most dragons use spell circles to perform spells as the ancient dragons thousands of years before them did the same but lacked the powers (at the time) to draw spell circles naturally.
- People from Alexandrite and other planets like Earth have the exact same blood types
- Dragons are aware of other worlds in the galaxy and do travel off planet a lot, but often use their dragon charms to create illusions to disguise themselves as a "big scary dragon" often scares people.
- Their disguised forms match the species of the dragon, if they are a winged dragon their furry form will have wings but their eyes will remain the same, even if they change into a human form (but any flying dragon will hide their wings).
- Dragons can come in all shapes and sizes, from the smallest ones at 4ft to the tallest ones around 7ft.
- Every dragon can change into their primal forms where they stand on their hands and feet- A primal form is how the dragons appeared during the savage ages they gain a power boost and can unleash more of their power but the only drawback is that this is a temporary form and will not last long but for most dragons when they enter it a flare of blue fire shows them entering the form, but red fire shows them exiting the form.
- These dragons can fuse with each other, but the result is the combined forms of the people that make up their fusion and if 9 dragons from each 1 of the clans become way more powerful.
- It is possible for someone to be half Dragon and half another species but the dragon features are a lot more dominant
- The planet is known to have a large minority of other species like wolves dogs and cats, that use palisman
- Palisman choose their owners as the planet naturally produces them like small animals
- The planet of alexandrite is very high tech flying cars and hoverboards, along with various types of smartphones.

-History of Alexandrite-

- For thousands of years the dragons had used their wild magic powers against each other in savage displays of power, and it wasn't until the gods of Alexandrite themselves came down from the heavens to grab the attention of the first head dragons to force the end of the savage ages. There was the existence of the clans long before the dragon gods appeared, as before they showed up dragons were born with these powers with no guidance leading to the chaos as before mentioned.

- These head dragons later became descendants of the current head dragon families along with the emperor/empress being the leader of the head dragons being seen as a president among the dragons while the head dragons are seen as governor's say to speak.
- Across the planet the dragon gods had passed away of old age to explain it simply as they went back to the realm to where they were originally from, and their resting places became the famed temples of Alexandrite. And the dragons had worshiped the gods as they were the ones who originally had given them guidance of their magic along with the order of the head dragons, the ones who have blessed "mortal" dragons with a fraction of the powers they had.
- These dragons + the emperor/empress had the powers to touch the hearts of the dragons as by using the dragon scales to stockpile power and used super advanced moves strong enough to pull large landmasses and shatter huge meteorites
- -The Head Dragons also gain a few things, more powers compared to a normal dragon of their clan and can grow to be gigantic (around the size of blue/yellow diamond from SU) when they wear the Pendent of their respective clans.
- -The Lord of Alexandrite dawns the Dragon Leader Pendent, which has them a head taller than their Head Dragon subordinates, and the Lord manages his/her own clan the Emperor's Clan which takes the role of being the police officers guards and the government functions. The Lord is often a master of all the Dragon elements and looks over the clan leaders and is the protector of the planet.
