

The Kingdoms of Gaia came into existence as the 8 main elements of the time started forming which was water, fire, electricity, Steel, strength, light and dark magic. These elements predate the moonstone family for 500 years or any wolves having one or more hybrid powers as back then it was unknown if these were just the main 8 or more.

The ancestors were mentioned in the history of gaia episode, but one thing that they did not know of another kingdom that was not mentioned at this point.

The Native wolf kingdom where the native wolf pack had survived on the south pole of the planet (which is different compared to the ice kingdom in the north pole). In which they survived on the huge chunk of land there as they set that place up to help the other kingdoms whenever they needed help with magic.

Think of it like they were the first magic wolves to ever exist, but as time their numbers dwindled, they weren't being killed off but their people simply had moved to other kingdoms including the eardwulf family two generations before Dakota was born.

They had moved to the elemental forest in the Valor kingdom, a natural magic forest, and built up a smaller kingdom there.

The former native wolf capital was abandoned but sometimes people would go over there to explore it, as it wasn't preserved rather well. Lastly there is a temple of gaia there but with no crystal more or so it was there as a museum to preserve the life that was once there.