

Cole Willson and Sylvester were out at one of the more forested parks hanging out enjoying the peace and quiet while also eating lunch.

While the three were on a dirt path going through the woods they discover an out of place cave, where it seems erosion has made it easy for someone of average height to walk into and explore.

"What... Is that thing?"

Sylvester had his flashlight on his camera turned on to see a massive crystal likely the size of a huge house that was a dark purple color.

Cole had walked up to the crystal and laid his hand on it as it began glowing under his hand.

And then a portal appeared within it, in which it had sucked Cole Willson and Sylvester within it with Sylvester's cell phone being left still turned on from him holding it before.

The three had zero idea what they had gotten themselves into as their screams were drowned out when they landed into the crystal world, a place where magic creatures lived.
