

Cole Willson and Sylvester had met up at Cole's house to talk about what had happened yesterday.

They had all agreed that what had happened was real as they all have necklaces to prove it.

It was then Sylvester had the idea to form a team, and that he wanted to be the leader of it, while Willson disagreed about that and that someone else should be the leader of it.

"ENOUGH!" Cole barked out of frustration.

"We will call this team the Defenders of Crystal and I'll be the leader of it".

Cole said this in a way where he was serious about this and Sylvester and Willson were dead quiet about this.

"I did not think we did not have any questions about this" Cole said with confidence radiating from him.

Lastly the three began to investigate the magic monsters occasionally seen with them taking them down silently but it was obvious to the average joe that something was happening in the small Florida town.
