

Cole had led the team back to that out of place cave where the Crystal world was found before.

The team now in their crystal forms began to explore the world before being forced out after waves upon waves of monsters.

They were able to escape unscathed but it became clear that they should not try to back there again as they lacked the manpower to really traverse there or for much longer as that would have kept happening over and over again.

It was then Cole had felt something in his gut that there would be more people out there that have powers like them.
