

So while the team and preparing how to figure out how to end the Crystal madness.

So the team decided to do another video game game night, and Cole ended up on top.

So Cole Makoto and Willson battled it out and surprise surprise Makoto ended up being on top among the teammates and future best friends.

And after that Makoto got the title of "The Resident Video game champion of the team" or something along those lines.

And they all managed to play their games without someone raging and throwing a controller through a window at Coles place.