

Issac was able to sense that some sort of bigger attack was coming, and the team had trained yet again for the last time to make sure there would be no room for any error while fighting for maybe the last time.

However this would be the second to last day before this magic drama would end, along with any memories potentially of this summer if they failed.