

After fighting off more of those shadow like monsters had appeared and as rookies with their magic the three fight them off but see a Coyote boy being tormented by more shadow monsters.

The Coyote boy is a 5'10 skinny coyote with dark green fur and eyes and wears a skinless black bodysuit with no shoes or gloves.

"Thank you three for saving me..."

"um... No problem um?" George had raised his eyebrow before the boy had spoken up.

"I don't remember my name... I just showed up here..."

"What about Callum?" George had spoken up.

"Sure That Can work..."

Callum then explains that they are in the dream world that exists behind the mirrors, and that they were dragged into it somehow by an outside force. He also explains that this world is in danger and he can feel it but would explain things at his "home" of sorts.

The Four had then made it to Twisted Cabin, a 2 story old house near the edge of Verdant forest where Callum had called his "home" of sorts.

He says that there is a mirror portal upstairs that should lead them back home and that at some point they could come back to this world if the portal is still open.

Once the three had made it back they appeared back in the main hallway of the high school dorm building at about 2 am in the morning.
