

Meanwhile on the Dream Fighters side the team had been navigating around the Dreamstalk's 50 floors downward, while Henry was mapping out the dream world and sensed that it would be doubtful for new areas to pop up.

While exploring the Dreamstalk they discovered that all the shadows they have beaten were lingering around but were very minor compared to the bigger shadows

George had then realized that they had made it to the very bottom of the dreamy tree.

"I believe we have made it to the bottom" George had pointed out as he moved the "door" out of the way.

The team discovered that there is a darker side of the dream world and through a hole on the side of this dreamy tree they could see the Castle of nightmares with a village around it floating in the sky.

"It appears that.. We have our next adventure ahead of us..."