

A Few days later during a regular trip to the dream world the dream fighters had arrived at the dreamworld castle when they had seen the knights of darkness there.

The Dream fighters had then readied their weapons and their powers before the queen said to stand down.

"George... Hear them out"

George and the others reluctantly stood down.

Demetrius and his team had explained how basically had been manipulated to do the dark king's bidding and how they are regretful over what happened.

The Queen with her children were standing in the middle of the both of them trying to serve to be a mediator between the two groups.

"I believe that if the two of you team up you can take him down...." The Queen had said "I know it won't be easy but we all have to put aside our personal differences for the greater good.."

George and Demetruus then shook hands; the two were both reluctant but agreed for the greater good.

"I Believe now some training would be in place for us... " Winter pointed at as the dream fighters sighed much to the confusion of the knights of darkness.