

On a Random Tuesday in Early November the Merge that was mentioned by Demetrious was beginning to happen.

So when classes had ended for the day the guardians with Kendric showing up had seen the chaos with the king of nightmares teleporting in front of them.

"Well why not my former minions with the team my wife had put together... give up it's far too late so give up"

The King had laughed evilly before teleporting away as more of the dream world on the dark side was being fused with the real world.

Portals all over the world were opening up slowly dragging the world into the dark side of the dream world.

"We have to go get to the dream world... now!"

George and the other's appearances had changed as the Queen and her kids showed up.

"The castle has been overrun with shadows and because of Roman... er the King of Nightmares"

She also said that the pathway to the dreamstalk the regular way was blocked but there was a path to it from the castle.

She then teleported them to the top of the castle as it was 6 floors high.

"We have a long way to go... let's go team!"

George Demetrius and the others had charged into the chaos that the king had started.