

The Guardians had developed a new pattern, studying during the day and being a college student, while in their spare time learning magic from their mentors.

The other eight minus Brian were catching on to using magic but he was struggling a lot, but eventually got the hang of it but no wear on par with the rest of his teammates.

It wasn't until Brian had stumbled pretty hard, he was beginning to think he wasn't cut out for doing magic but it was then he noticed that he had formed a small lily from the grass under the practice field he was at with Artemis.

After that Brian was working hard on himself to work on his magic to be on par with King Artemis but it would be for a while before he perfected his magic.

"Hey Brian?"

"Yes King Moonstone?"

"Why do you wear your hair like that?"

Brian got embarrassed before Artemis caught his drift.

"Sorry i should have not asked that"

Brian had then shown his scar and explained how he got it, it was then seen from Artemis's point of view that he likely saw him and his brothers at a beast fighting match during 2020 but did not know it at the time.