

Within Brian's subconscious a new personality had appeared, Darius the manifestation of Brian's trauma given life because of the ghost like spell that he was hit with some time before this.

Darius Elmwood- The split personality of Brian he looks the same but his antlers appear more sharp and his green eyes turn red. He is known to be very blunt, critical and very self centered with a huge ego. The way Brian turns into Darius is blunt force trauma, or something that causes him to sneeze or faint (he is hemophobic to an event in his past) but when any of the following happens it's only a 50% chance. Dairus had formed within Brian when the team had a showdown with the Darkheart sisters because they used powerful magic that had a side effect on him.

Darius was also given life mentally because he sort of fed on the fragments of Brian's past trauma and fears both past and present. He had realised that he was going to be fighting for control over Brian's body and Brian who was sleeping when he first formed was unaware of it.

Another thing is that Darius the Enemy within him, was going to be another major villain within Brian's life, and for the events throughout the story.