

So during one night when Brian was asleep he was then dragged back into his head to see Darius standing there fuming.

"Did you honestly think that I was going to let you off that easily?!"

Darius was standing there with his magic swirling around him as Brian got up and got his magic visible as well.

"Actually yes and I'm taking you down!"

The two personalities had an epic dream-like battle between each other but Darius had played dirty.

Darius had used Brian's trauma and memories against him including the one about Alexandria to hit him with one last attack knocking him out and Darius threw him into a mental jail yet again and took control of his body.