

Like the past 3 times kicking the butt of a boss monster, the timestones that came from the last boss would unlock a new labyrinth for the team to explore.

This time Lucas had decided to change things up a bit, he had brought the remaining members of his dorm who did not go to the time realm into it to join the team as it was getting exhausting recruiting a friend and then catching them up onto things over and over again.

Theo had did his thing and did a scan to check on the things in the labyrinth and what he detected was-

This labyrinth was based on space, and ran to be about 13 floors with a single boss monster detected with a time stone.

The guardians of time of course being lead by Lucas had adventured into the next dungeon pros on how to navigating things and kicking the bosses of each area.

Lucas had delivered the final blow to this monster which was mars the god of war and obtained the 8th time stone from it.