

Kage had helped his family and kingdom to become more open minded to the psychic wolves, while he did not learn any new tricks he was able to make up with his parents and siblings.

Kage had grown a lot with Akira by his side, for the past few months yeah they did disagree with a few things here and there but generally they got along very well.

Kage and Akira are working hard as the princes of two neighboring kingdoms to help each one get along with each other after their very cold relationship for many years and many generations before them.