

We had been dragged out of bed during the middle of the night, by as before mentioned in my last entry we got introduced to the dream world.

Basically it exists beyond the mirrors on earth, our world and the dream world are tied to each other as one or the other can not exist without the other.

As for the dream world itself there are two halves to it when there was originally one.

The Light side was the original side, and is very Heaven-like- in a way where there are clouds with a "sun" as well.

For the Newer Dark side that the king created, it's very hell-like- in a way where there is little to no light, mostly darkness.

Lastly, he created the nightmare castle and nighttime village for his own subjects to call home in his half of the dream world.

He also gave everyone powers tied to darkness and him in a way.

He gave us the name of the Knights of darkness, his personal minions to do his bidding as he leads them as I Demetrius was chosen to lead in which I accepted.
