

On a trip to his high school on a school bus Adam is seen on his phone with his headphones in.

For a few months now throughout New Stone City, there have been incidents of people going missing and reappearing traumatized around museums in the city namely around one near St Thomas's high school a few blocks away from it.

Adam is skeptical of all the stories about these people having these incidents around museums, and shares this skepticism to his two friends Chester and Tucker who both share their own doubts as well.

But during the day there is a whole middle school class that goes missing in one of the museums which everyone is rattled about.
