

The team had done some more training and started to make a pattern out of training every few days so they would not lose as easily as they had last week.

Axel had noticed that if times get tough he could help in the fighting by using his powers to create a construct of sorts so that the team could just use their weapons almost like using a makeshift bunker to deal double damage.

Axel also discovered that he can redirect the hits of some of the monsters through portal magic that often does more damage as it acts like a boomerang.

Adam felt confident in himself and his team like they could accomplish anything even take down the mastermind of this museum madness
