

One thing that the tamers of shadow did not notice is that they all attended the same unnamed high school.

They all found this out simply by running into each other in the hallway.

And after that they all began to hang out with each other some more, even so out of school.