

The team has figured out that there was another shadow castle that had appeared somewhere within the city.

With some digging it was discovered that the next Monarch was Rachel Anderson, the owner of a manufacturing company within the city as she was a female Weasel.

The next shadow castle was the Factory of Gluttony, but like the past few times the team took down the next monarch.

It was then noticed that the shadow of Rachel said that she was given this power by someone and can't remember who but they had control over shadows.

Nathan and Shane were confused as it sounded like a Nightwing could have done it, as the only family that can control them