

The Team takes off like a bat out of hell from the last kingdom to the frozen north Navratna.

"h-hey... someone please turn on the heater.. these uniforms aren't very insulated..."

"Hang on, the heater is turning on..."

The Team then had started to approach the Navratna snow fort, an area outside the capital city that protects it from invaders that's a snow shield.

The ship was about to crash in the snow shield before it broke through it, before it crash landed into the Granite Organization's base here nearly destroying it.

Commander Navratna and his men were caught at a bad moment as they were eating lunch.

"Really can't your pets burst in at a worse time ?!"

"I don't know..."

Joel whistles as the team readied their own weapons.

"What about... brainwashing the homeworld for no reason at all and us kicking your butts?"

The team did their thing and wrecked another one of the granite organizations' bases running them out.