

It would have been natural to face off against some of the other major bosses the team had gone up against throughout their adventure.

However the team was getting captured left and right and one by one the team's numbers were dwindling yet again.

Until Juan and Joel were the only two people left.