

"Throughout my life I was in my brother's shadow, and I just accepted the fact that no one would really notice me, my name is Artemis Moonstone. I am the 57th prince of my kingdom on the homeworld planet of Gaia."

(Artemis can be seen at this point sitting in his room writing in a journal, he has chocolate colored fur with a beige chest and stomach, his eyes are the same color as his main fur color with diamond pupils. He has shaggy long black hair that touches his shoulders; he has a stocky body type and stands at 6'3.)

"If it wasn't obvious I am the one writing this journal I would most likely keep for myself and keep it locked away until the future. I have not had the greatest life ever, I'm constantly overshadowed by my older brother the famous Solaris Moonstone as much as I don't want to say it I'm resentful of him. Especially that event in middle school for stealing my crush but that's another story, of me being too shy not to say anything and me having a broken heart."

(The flashback in question is a 12 year old Solaris asking out a wolf girl named Tamara, and a broken hearted Artemis seen in the background with a letter in his hands. It also shows the other wolves in their own middle schools across the planet after that event but flashes back to the present).

"Ugh, why am I writing this? Nothing happens in my boring life it's just the same old same old-"

There is a knock at his bedroom door as he panics but puts his journal away as he calmly stands up and quickly puts his hair in a ponytail before answering the door.

"Prince Moonstone, you are needed in the royal chamber immediately" said the lion guard
"Okay thank you I will be down there in a moment"

"Really? My parents need me for something? That's news to me, usually it's about my brother!"
Artemis said this to himself as he put on his sandals while wearing a normal white t-shirt and some black shorts, as he quickly ran downstairs.

As he arrived there, there were two formal wolves with a girl who looked to be his age; his parents King and Queen Moonstone can be seen as well.

"There he is right now Artemis can you please come here? I want to introduce you to someone" Said his father with excitement in his voice as Artemis had run over to the small group. "This is Athena Silver" Said his mother "She is arranged to marry you within a month" as if comically there is a metaphorical record scratch. Athena is 6'1 with her father Mr Silver being a head taller than her but her mother is a head shorter than her they are silver wolves with blue eyes.

"W-wait a minute... I'm being m-married to her? B-but why?" Mr Silver turns to him and starts explaining "you may not remember my daughter Athena but the two of you were in the same classes together". "Athena silver?... I feel like that name rings a few bells..." Artemis says to himself. "Sorry for us to meet again Arthur..." Artemis cuts her off for a moment "It's Artemis but close enough". "Oh sorry many apologies! one of my best friends is named Arthur, your names are alike." Athena at this point had blushed a little bit at her mistake, she had started twirling a finger in her hair out of nervousness as Artemis had also blushed a little and laughed it off.

"The Balcony is to your left, you two can talk in private out there" Said King Moonstone, as the two walked out that way as a guard shut the door behind them.

The two had then caught up with each other, as they were classmates but never saw the other wolf, Athena was a somewhat shy and timid girl but very smart and observant. Although Artemis won't admit it he then started developing feelings for her and after what felt like hours talking she then had to leave to go back home with her parents.

Artemis had headed back to his room and locked the door, as he quietly got back out his journal and started writing once again about the current day. The day that all this happened was February 27th and that the wedding day would be March 27th one month from now.