

The wolves put their plan into action to escape their homeworld, they take the needed things and meet up at Moonstone castle's ship bay at 12:45 am in the morning. They had many suitcases and other stuff they needed.

"1..2...3..4..5" Great everyone here said Akira he has a crystal shaped gemstone floating in a magic bubble floating above him "okay artemis summon your ship".

Artemis raises his left hand as a dark green magic aura forms around it as a medium sized ship like the size of a yacht appears that's styled like a dark grey bullet with plane wheels at the bottom, with the inside appearing like an RV but bigger.

"Everyone pile in, there should be plenty of room in the trunk and enough space for everyone" said Artemis as the door opened to his ship like an RV door. The wolves then started loading up things into the ship as Victor's ear twitched "Hurry guards are coming!".

The wolves then hurried up as Storm was the last one to shut the door as Artemis had hopped into the pilot's seat as he scanned his paw to turn on the ship. Soon floating screens had shown up with the pilot's wheel also unlocking for him. "Is everyone bucked up?" said Artemis as everyone nodded yes.

"Alright then, the next stop in 5 hours is a place called Cypress Woods Montana on Earth hold on to something" The ship then floated up as it went from hover mode to space flight mode and jetted off at a fast speed.

The trip through space was fine and quiet, there weren't any asteroid problems or any meteor showers. "Everyone remembered to turn their location off on their phones right?"

"We were supposed to do that?" Said storm confused everyone and gave him a worried look before reading the room "I'm joking I'm joking of course I did turn it off!". "Dude too soon we still can get caught even Artemis disabled that for his ship" Said Zephyr annoyed. Akira had put both their heads in sound proof bubbles as Artemis kept flying through space.

The wolves sighed after that, as it appeared that Zephyr and Storm were still fighting, albeit muffled and not very understandable.

After some time they spotted the Earth "Bingo" Artemis flipped a few switches as he began entering the atmosphere of the planet. The other wolves had woken up from their own mini naps with artemis looking tired and exhausted but still awake and attentive. Artemis then checks a side panel before seeing the location of the coordinates and lands the ship in a small clearing of a heavily wooded area with a nearby lake.

"We made it... Akira get the creation stone ready" Artemis said some exhaustion in his voice

The wolves then walked out the ship and looked around for a little bit but found a rundown shack "Hey Artemis" Said Bohdi "can't we use this as a cover for the place we want to build as our base?". Artemis looked at it for a moment and then nodded yes the wolves then got to work fixing up the two story shack which was more a small farmhouse. Colton had dug out an empty area for the creation stone to go under the long broken fireplace, as Akira activated it and created a door with a small earthquake under the house.

"I was able to create that temple you wanted Artemis the only thing we need now is to get the ship into the docking bay and we are golden" Said Akira "Good everyone thank you for following me so far... now let's hide here for now".

Someone's stomach had grumbled as everyone looked at Victor "hey that wasn't me!.... This time" he said the last line blushing but pouting.

"It was totally your gut dude, I can make my wolf cookies again just like old times we packed plenty of food and ingredients" Artemis said as the door to the temple opened to the kitchen.