

Artemis had woken up the next morning hair a mess, looking flustered and blushing rather hard about that dream he had of his crush.

"W-what was that d-dream? It f-felt very real..."

Artemis had fully woken up. He was feeling rather nervous, his stomach felt like it was in a knot with a racing heart beat that felt like a jack hammer in his chest.

Meanwhile at the Lane manor amber had woke up blushing very hard at the dream but generally had the same reaction as Artemis but she had shocked it up to nerves and stress she did not want to admit it but she was slowly crushing on Artemis.

Artemis got himself ready and walked downstairs to the others; he ,generally calmed down but his stomach did feel like there was a knot in it and he was still blushing.

Eventually he said that he was really falling for the girl Amber he saved yesterday, to the other wolves and that they became his wingmen or wing wolves for him whenever they saw her again.

Amber was keeping silent about Artemis in her dream a secret when Artemis had said his deep feelings about her when she was doing her life stuff.