

After the events of him unlocking his powers he needed help with training his physical body, so he asked Victor the strongest wolf on the team for help in which he agreed to help.

"So you want some muscle eh?" said victor smugly "y-yes a-any help will do Victor" that day was hard on Artemis as he could barely use his magic and the basic element of strength.

(Context: on Gaia there are 8 main powers Shadows, Psychic, Water, Electricity, Steel, Strength, Ice and Flames in which the other eight wolves on the team besides Artemis are and are princes of the kingdoms in which those elements are).

After a week Artemis had trained up in the basic Eight elements of the others thanks to the others and Victor's magic aura orange had shown up as before he had magic but never had an aura tied to him similar to the members of his family.

Soon Artemis had the main eight powers down, but could switch to each one of them like a wildcard which turns out the members of the moonstone family for generations are capable of. One way to tell if he is using another power (other than his own or strength) is if his hair has changed color.

Artemis is nowhere near an expert on using magic at this point in the story but eventually becomes okay with using other magic but no wear near a pro as the wolves of their own elements.