

It had been a few days when the wolves had "gone missing" on their homeworld with their names being constantly blared once the missing prince alert went out.

Artemis Moonstone, Akira Mist, Kage Darkheart, Colton Steelspike, Zephyr Albatross, Magma Igneous, Bodhi Frost, Victor Shield are the names that are constantly blared every day at this point.

Athena and her family are distraught by Artemis going missing of course her parents more so than herself as she was just going to marry into the moonstone family.

With the confusion going on at night she had snuck into the moonstone castle as it was easy to do as the family itself wasn't there but somewhere else.

"Alright then Athena... time to investigate his room to see if there is a clue or anything..." she said to herself as she ransacked his room for clues she checked the bathroom as well along with the mini refrigerator.

She kept digging around until she found a secret compartment to Artemis's desk, opened it and found a journal in there.

"Bingo... now where are you at? My dear husband?" she skimmed through the pages to find what she was anticipating on finding.

She read the journal entry that Artemis was going to run away with his friends to another planet called earth and the coordinates to it, she took a picture of the thing she needed on her phone but took the journal into her own possession.

She froze when she heard footsteps and hid in the closet that was open to see that Solaris Artemis's brother and two guards appeared to turn to investigate.

"Crud.... Someone broke into the castle. Guards lock down the place now!" Solaris ordered the guards nodded and took off running to lock the place down.

Solaris can be seen looking around the room for a bit and looks into the closet where athena is but did not see her as she stuffed herself into the back before leaving the room and shutting the door. Athena sighed and looked out the window as she broke it with her boot and used a grappling hook as she was prepared to sneak in and out spy style and got out of the castle.

"Good... now I got what I needed that moonstone is mine..." she mumbled to herself as the castle can be seen in the background behind her.