

Solaris can be seen going back to his room within the castle which is way fancier and better than his brother's and picks up a framed picture of himself and artemis as kids having fun on a beach day when they were 10 years old.

"Artemis... you could have told me you resented me so much... you did not have to bottle up your own feelings" said Solaris to himself.

It shows a text conversation between Artemis and Solaris as he covers his face with a pillow and signs.

"So this is our plan to leave homeworld"

"Are you sure about this? Gaia forbid you get hurt.."

"I will be fine trust me, just make sure that journal is safe in my room"

Solaris takes off the pillow and goes wide eyed realizing that the journal may have been stolen as he rushes to his room and checks to find it in that secret compartment on his desk.

"Oh... NO!" Solaris screamed as the guards from before showed up behind him "My prince there is evidence of a break in on the 1st floor". "Damn it! Contact my parents immediately at the Saffron Mansion" the guards nodded and took off running as solaris ran back to his room and shut the door.

He then just slid down his door and sat onto the ground just holding his head and sighing "if only you told me why you were leaving... i could have seen this coming"

"....."

"That's it... I'm going to help you as best as i can bro..." he said this with determination in his voice "i won't perhaps say it to you in person but i can help you as best as i can".

Solaris stood up, grabbed his phone and started texting someone, He was thinking of his brother this whole time.