

Growing Love Part 3

Continuation of <https://www.furaffinity.net/view/51910950/>

By vabad

A series of deep and powerful thooms filled the city's skyline as Caleb's walk resumed, leaving countless furs ahead of him scattering with panicked cries as he left the city's outskirts behind, his path now set for the downtown district and Sarina. She still stood near the damage caused by her own bit of fun and passion, a hand put on her hip as she watched him; she was herself still panting from the orgasm had just moments ago enjoyed, and for now seemed content to just enjoy the gorgeous sight approaching her.

And goodness was it a sight, Caleb quickly back to purring with all the power a big cat could as his massive lion paws trampled the cityscape, especially aimed at the packed highway at his feet, down where numerous vehicles had been trapped in a tight traffic jam of evacuation that had ground to a halt as he took out their escape. And now they were all trapped there in his path like fish in a barrel, every single lane in either direction packed to the brim with vehicles once intent on escaping the city, yet which were now all stuck.

Cars were packed so tightly that there were many areas where furs couldn't even open their doors to escape, all the while furs around them had to climb up and around their vehicles to get away, scrambling and falling as they cried out for help. And though many tried to climb over the highway's edges, or just over vehicles, was that made all the harder by the powerful quakes which struck each time Caleb took another step, his paws flattening untold amounts of vehicles and even buildings beneath their massive pads in impacts so strong they caused cars to bounce even miles from him.

And this threw furs to the ground, trapping them among and under cars, or leaving them scrambling to get back up again, bodies bruised by falling, just to moments later repeat the same. That caused the fleeing to progress at a snail's pace, leaving most furs doomed to watch those paws near, feeling the stronger quakes as he approached, and seeing, with huge frightened eyes, how seas of furs and vehicles vanished beneath each footfall.

They'd see cars bounce high, and many get flung away by each step, just to watch the other paw lift far in the distance, before swinging around the first and moving overhead, casting its vast shadow over them. Two toes was all it needed to cover the entire highway, as was evident by staring up at its sole, where a long line of flattened vehicular remains and chunks of asphalt lay stuck, bordered on each side by debris from houses and smaller streets.

The paw would fall soon after, giving the tiny furs mere moments to act before they'd see street lights snap against the dark pads, followed by vehicles crunching as they were pushed down against the highway, breaking houses all around them in the final tenths of a second before their bodies burst beneath the paw; the countless crunches and pops of their perishing was inaudible above the thoom of impact, whose volume was akin to an explosion.

And above that all was the deep and beastly purring emanating from Caleb, whose muzzle was filled with a satisfied expression of bliss as he oh so casually walked across the cityscape, shaft throbbing with quite the need as he looked towards Sarina. Her tail was swaying as she watched him, a purr escaping her, too, from watching the carnage at his paws as he drew a long line of huge and deep paw craters behind him.

She waited a moment before also walking towards him, carelessly striding through the downtown district, scattering even more furs ahead of her who foolishly believed her to need a rest after her fun. A playful giggle escaped her as she walked through the dense cluster of skyscrapers in front of her, the tip of her tongue poking out rather innocently as her massive paws rose from their craters, striking skyscrapers with their upside and the fronts of her legs, to which even those sturdy structures snapped like twigs.

Even the thickest were slimmer than even her slender legs, their concrete and glass shattering against her fur, breaking into multiple pieces to roll off the advancing wall of a limb. Some held themselves together better than others, and “merely” snapped into a few huge chunks that fell down next to the paw, while others crumbled like sandcastles, spilling around paw and leg as they swung through.

Every single structure failed against the “smallest” application of force, many practically exploding while others barely held together, falling onto crowds that were crushed and buried by debris and wreckage. And then the paw itself raised high up, the sole flipping up to reveal itself to those beneath while thick panda toes plowed through the upper floors of several structures, which all crumbled against the thick digits.

Then the paw pressed down, the skyscrapers and structures beneath it crumbling like sandcastles as it pressed down without effort, showering fleeing crowds in debris, leaving them dodging enormous boulders of skyscraper chunks that meteored into the ground, crushing crowds and vehicles alike. Then would the paw strike them, their bodies vanishing beneath the vastness of red panda paw, which only drew out another deep purr from her as she walked on, her other paw already in the midst of its next step.

The two titans continued towards each other, careless about the countless furs in their path, with even Caleb’s tail maw focused on Sarina rather than the fleeing furs down below. They stopped once they reached each other, loving smiles cast between the two lovers as Caleb reached towards Sarina, his large and strong hands grasping her hips as she giggled, just to make an excited sound as he oh so effortlessly hoisted her up off her feet to lift her head a bit higher.

He then planted a deep kiss upon her muzzle, to which she giggled and kissed him back, closing her eyes as she reached for his muzzle, stroking it and his head while she relaxed. The kiss was brief, and Caleb gave her snout a momentary lick as his lips slid off hers, after which he lifted her higher still as his shaft throbbed stronger, a soft blush forming on her cheeks as she quite quickly realized his intent.

The whole city got to watch as she was lifted high, and as Caleb's muzzle neared her womanhood, his own shaft pulsating with need as his feline nose slowly begun to rub against it, his eyes watching the remains of her pleasure, as well as various bits of rubble from the skyscraper she had used. A long moan escaped her as she felt the caress of his snout, just for a louder one to follow as he begun to push his tongue into her womanhood, leaving her entire body stiffening for a moment as a shudder of pleasure ran through it.

Her eyes closed as the tongue ventured deeper, licking against the sensitive vaginal walls, knowing just where and how to lick to get her the most pleasure that he could. And Sarina savored it, reaching down to grasp his horns with her hands as she held on tight, her toes spreading wide in pleasure as furs around the two fell to the ground in pain from the volume of her voice.

But then she felt another tongue, the one of Caleb's tail maw, licking against her soles, causing even more sounds of delight to escape her as she felt that dexterous serpentine muscle slide over her dark pads. It licked up the crushed remains of countless furs, as well as wrecked skyscrapers, vehicles, and more; it worked slow, firm, and with great skill in order to make it all the better for her, which her loving sounds of pleasure confirmed.

And that shameless act was put on full display for all around to watch, Sarina using her soon cleaned paws to press against Caleb's shaft, stroking it with the rough texture of her pads, drawing out beastly purrs and murr from him, while also driving his shaft to throb stronger. By the time it begun to leak pre had the two been going for a little while, stopping only as the first booms of precum drop impact sounded beneath them, where those thick drops of pre-sex meteored into the ground.

They easily took out huge chunks of buildings, and crushed groups of furs whole, before flowing out and washing others away, a fact the two titans seemed quite amused by. But Sarina was soon put back on the ground now that Caleb felt he was done cleaning her, after which she purred as she grasped a hold of his shaft, caressing its flesh with passion as she also gazed down at the cityscape around her, or what little of it remained still.

"Mmmmm, this city has been quite a lot of fun~ but how about we find somewhere else to REALLY have some fun~?" Sarina spoke with a playful voice, receiving an agreeing purr from Caleb, who huffed from her caress, closing his eyes in bliss as her hands teased across the throbbing shape of his shaft.

"But~ this city should be good for something, still~ After all it would be such a shame to leave it like this~" Sarina purred playfully as she gave a plotting gaze to the people around the two, all before she turned her attention back to Caleb's shaft. She leaned in towards it, her lips puckering to plant a soft and tender kiss upon its flesh, to which the massive chimera purred in pleasure, eyes closing, just for a beastly pleasure sound to boom from him as he felt a surge of energy rush into him from her.

His body immediately began to swell and grow, to which Sarina purred as she continued to caress that firm and swelling member, nuzzling and licking against it as she heard the furs around them scream in utter fright upon witnessing Caleb expand. She could hear the sound of carnage down below as his swelling paws plowed through the skyline, the advancing digits toppling structures and crumbling them up while crowds were trapped and crushed by them.

The entire process was short, and Caleb slowly crouched throughout it, purring only louder as his form soon stopped swelling, having “just” doubled in size, leaving him 4 kilometers tall, towering above all around him, even Sarina. And she licked her maw upon seeing his new size, huffing a bit as she held his shaft, which by now was far closer to the size it had oftentimes been compared to her throughout their relationship.

“Now, let’s give it a proper meal~” she purred louder as Caleb watched her, huffing louder and stronger as he reached for his shaft to hold it in place while Sarina let go, her attention immediately moving onto the nearest tall skyscraper. People around and inside of it scattered and screamed as her massive hand descended towards it, her huge fingers plowing through smaller structures near it, carving huge gashes into their exteriors as they slowly begun to wrap around the tall spire.

“Let us experiment some more~” she purred as her hands wrapped around the structure, her fingers slamming into it, throwing anyone within it to the ground as the windows all cracked, the whole thing groaning from the strain of “just” a grip. And yet the structure only barely begun to crack, remaining mostly whole even as the grip visibly tightened as she begun to tear the building out of the ground like a plant, to which surrounding furs could only gasp in horror as she effortlessly uprooted the whole thing!

They didn’t even think about how impossible it seemed for her to pull it up without damage, or without it falling apart, for the sheer sight of it left them all universally stunned into silence. She first lifted the skyscraper up to her face, her huge cyan eye staring into the countless offices within, where terrified eyes stared back at her, receiving naught but a playful smirk in return as she turned her head to move her lips towards it.

“Get ready little ones, you’re about to go on a ride~” she teased them as her maw opened up, her tongue pressing towards their windows, sliding over them still without damage, leaving at most just larger cracks as the terrified furs were doomed to watch her slowly coat the skyscraper’s exterior with saliva. But then she stopped and turned her attention to Caleb, who still purred and huffed as he watched her turn the structure so that its spire aimed towards the slit of his cock.

It was clear that the skyscraper was a bit wider than his urethra, but neither of the two seemed bothered by that fact, and Sarina wasted no time before she slowly pushed the spire in, letting its cold metal caress that huge urethral slit, drawing out such booming moans from Caleb. He closed his eye with a roar of pleasure as he felt the roof crash against the slit's edges, the structure barely crumbling a little bit as Sarina pushed it deeper, causing the urethra to spread just a bit to let the building slide deeper inside.

Groaning, he savored the sensation of concrete grinding against his unyielding urethral walls, every single inch barraging his senses with pleasures he had never before seen the likes of, pleasures that made him roar only more in lust. And Sarina was slowly licking her maw as she pushed the structure in, listening to the screams and pleas from those trapped inside of it as they watched the light of the outside day vanish, leaving them trapped staring in darkness at the passing urethral walls.

And Sarina continued to push, letting go of the structure to instead press her palm against its base, shoving it deeper in as those inside cried and screamed, hearing the throbs, and the groans around them which followed as the structure was strained by the violent squeeze accompanying each throb. Whatever force was protecting it faded quickly, however, the deeper it got, thus parts of it began to crumble away to make its entire form rounder, all the while it was slowly being snapped into huge chunks by each and every throb.

And Sarina was already reaching for another just after she had let go of the first, her lusty eyes scanning the cityscape for the structures which contained the most tiny furs, her senses letting her know which she should oh so eagerly focused on next. And now that the people around the two knew her intent, were they even more intent on fleeing and escaping, not that their growing panic did them any good; yet still they tried, and tried as hard as they could, panic being all which their minds could feel as they fled, screaming in horror as the fingers wrapped around the structures.

She uprooted them as easily as the one before, leaving even more furs staring in horror at what they were experiencing, their eyes as wide as saucers to see such acts committed with such a casual manner. The structure in Caleb's shaft was meanwhile slowly passing through the tighter tunnels leading to his orbs, his body distributing the chunks of structure equally, letting the tiny furs only brace themselves for what was to come.

They soon saw the passage open up, and felt themselves fall, just to splash into a lake of semen, their nostrils filling with the strong scent of arousal. Fear and horror spread throughout them like wildfire, fueled exponentially by the pleasure roar which boomed from outside once the next skyscraper was shoved into the cock slit, telling them all that they were far from the last to suffer this horrific fate.

Yet as their structures broke apart would deafening gurgles fill their ears, only some of them picking up on the cries of other furs trapped in there, those Caleb had already stuffed into his cock earlier, and who were now being churned down into more of his seed. It was only as they felt the burn of it against them and saw their bodies melt and turn into goop as they begun to realize the true extent of their fate, horrified eyes noticing the structures around them doing much the same; and above that all boomed the gurgling and churning sounds, drowning out any screams and cries for help.

Yet those outside could hear that gurgling and churning sound clear as day, the realization that it was coming from Caleb's orbs following moments after, striking the furs like a train as they gasped in utter and incomparable horror. With eyes as wide as ever did they watch the second skyscraper vanish in, knowing now what its fate would be, and only staring more as the third was positioned up, and then shoved right in.

Many of them had seen Caleb stuff things into his cock before, but had never truly imagined that this was the fate of those people and vehicles; but gods, how that realization made them flee faster, even if they weren't near a tall structure. Sarina, however, merely purred listening to the sounds of her boyfriend's orbs churning their meal, herself incapable of resisting the urge to caress and fondle them, each one now as large as her torso.

They were already so heavy, and only getting heavier as she squeezed them, feeling how firm they were, and even hearing the cries from within. She then locked eyes with Caleb, who purred to her as she reached for more, her own tail swaying as she resumed her collecting, an eager look spread upon her face.

But then she suddenly felt a rush of pleasure as Caleb's tailmaw nuzzled towards her womanhood, its tongue extending to push into her as she crouched above the cityscape, causing her to moan loudly just as she grasped another structure. Then, just as she felt it lick, she felt that rush of sensations wash across her as her form boomed up in size, swelling to grow as tall as Caleb within seconds, leaving her form even more towering as she crouched.

"Ohhh~ kinky~" she giggled as she reached with an unoccupied hand to boop the snout of the serpentine maw, after which she returned her attention onto the city, a gleeful giggle escaping her as she continued to collect the little "treats" for Caleb's shaft. Her newest size gave her an even easier time tearing those buildings from the ground than before, and she hastily moved them towards that throbbing cock, inserting them into the slit one after the other, working on really giving those orbs the meal they deserved.

And Caleb moaned throughout the whole event, panting and huffing as he looked at her, stroking a massive hand throughout her hair as she purred quite fondly, the two sharing loving smiles above the devastation caused by their acts. Yet Sarina soon gasped and moaned in pleasure once she felt something push into her own rear, to which she looked back to see Caleb's tail maw in the process of pushing a whole skyscraper into her behind, spreading her tailhole wide.

She groaned oh so loud from that sensation, shuddering with pleasure as she felt the crumbling structure slide into her rear, which squeezed around and tugged on it to pull it deeper. She could feel it crumble into huge chunks by the point its base was inside of her, after which the tail maw licked her little opening as she purred and stretched, feeling her insides clench around the building.

It broke apart and crunched, spilling terrified tinies into her, whom she felt squirm around as they slipped into anal folds, where they were crunched up by the squeeze of her insides. Her purring only continued after that as she began to rise up, Caleb rising with her as the two soon towered above the ruins of the city, sharing smirks as they surveyed the aftermath of it all.

"I think I feel properly full now~" Caleb purred as his orbs continued their loud churning and gurgling, each visibly larger than before as they worked on their meal, his hand reaching towards Sarina's head as she smiled back to him.

"Ohhh I can see that~" Sarina responded. "You look so ready for another bout of fun...once we find a more suitable city, of course~" she added on with a giggle as she looked down to their surroundings once more, laying eyes upon the collapsed skyscrapers and ruins around them, as well as the scrambling survivors trying to escape. Just trace bits of the once impressive skyline remained, and apart from that was only the suburbs largely untouched, if only just because those tiny houses seemed uninteresting to the god-sized couple.

"No offense, little ones, for I am sure you'd all loove to witness some more passion, but there just isn't enough of you left~ and quite frankly, you all broke all too easily~" she giggled to them, locking eyes with a few horrified furs, towards which she winked before turning her attention back to Caleb.

No further words were exchanged between the two before they leaned in, smiles spread upon their muzzles as they nuzzled, wrapping their arms around each other, pressing Caleb's throbbing member between their bodies as they hugged and nuzzled. Survivors around them took this chance to flee, running in terror as the two nuzzled and purred, just to stare up at them in fear as they saw the nuzzle slowly transition into a kiss.

And it was just as that kiss begun that the two suddenly begun to swell in size yet again, their forms growing in waves, sparking seas of horrified cries all around the two. Their growing paws plowed through the ruins around them, which each exploded into rubble as the huge digits struck, crumbling structures like sand while crowds of terrified furs scrambled over rubble and wreckage to flee.

Eyes filled with fright stared back at the approaching paws, each wide with tiny frightened pupils as the paws came over them, crushing the fleeing furs beneath paws, or within a mass of rubble and wreckage. Those further away could only stare in absolute horror as the fields of surviving skyscrapers collapsed around the swelling paws, seeing sparks and small explosions light up their sides as they expanded, each structure seeming more akin to a sandcastle than the seemingly everlasting spires they had always been.

The ground even buckled around each paw from the strain put upon it, not just from the paws sinking deeper from the increasing weight, but also from how the paws pushed on the ground as they grew, carving a huge trench out from where the two stood at the beginning of their growth. The few flying vehicles around them scattered, but still saw the scene clear, seeing the paws sink deeper as they carved those huge growth trenches in the cityscape, seeing the buckling ground and detonating gas mains alongside the collapse preceding each.

A plane flying high above the two had been continuously ascending higher as its pilots watched the deadly couple; both of them were trying to desperately fly to heights they thought to be out of the couple's reach, just to be left helplessly watching as the two grew near. Panicked cries and screams filled the cockpit as the GPWS system blared its warnings, mixing their sounds of panic with "Terrain ahead! Pull up! Pull up!" on repeat from speakers as they pulled on their yokes in desperation as the two growing titans neared.

Most of the planes managed to pull away in time, the screams of passengers audible above the warnings, which soon faded away as the plane's course now avoided the two. The passengers, however, got a great view of the planes which weren't so lucky, those who found themselves too low and in just the right heading to make escape impossible.

And with cries of fear they watched as planes collided with the two, each vehicle like a minute streak striking either head on or at an angle mid-dodge, and each colliding with a bodyscape so vast it was like a landmass. Huge, yet comparably miniscule explosions thus lit up the two titans, who seemed to ignore them and their pleasant tickling; but the fireballs certainly gained the attention of the people around them, however, both at their paws and flying near the two. After all, they made it quite clear just how fragile they all were, that even the explosions of planes did nothing to get the attention of the two titans.

Most of the city's remaining structures were gone by the time the two stopped growing, either by a mix of being struck by their growing paws, by being taken out by the shifting ground around them, or by the quakes themselves. Yet as the shaking begun to subside and the tiny furs realized that the two had stopped growing would they finally look upon them properly, each fur gasping in horror at the size they witnessed.

It couldn't even be properly measured, just how huge they were, their shadows cast far into the countryside, and the whole city beneath them in that shadow, while some survivors even stared up from near toes of such immense size that no skyscraper could have ever hoped to rival them. They were each 30 kilometers tall, a size so immense, and so seemingly impossible that they towered more than twice as tall as the cruising altitude of the commercial airliners who moments earlier scrambled in the skies around them, and each so huge they could sprawl across most cities with ease!

And it was only then that their kiss was released, their lips sliding off the other's as they both purred, releasing their loving embrace to now just gaze upon the landscape around them. From up as high as they now stood did the world seem so miniscule, their eyes seeing for countless kilometers around them, able to witness the most distant curvature of the Earth for more than 500 kilometers away.

They then looked down as Sarina took a few steps back to properly see it all, giggling some as she felt the world around her paws move and crumble so easily as they shift to take those steps, and as she watched debris rain from her soles as they left the growth trench behind. Even the casual and gracious impacts which followed seemed like cataclysms, and her amused cyan eyes watched the ground ripple around those steps, and swaths of suburbia vanishing beneath them; surrounding structures were even pulverized by “just” the shockwaves produced by steps that “light”!

And Caleb purred too, watching the impacts of her paws, and how the world seemed so fragile now, even more so than before; he couldn’t resist spreading his wings wide in a huge stretch, curling his toes and digging them into the ground, feeling soil and bedrock both crumble like sand from the feline digits digging through them. He could feel some bits of structures crunch as he did that, and also parts of the surrounding cityscape collapse above the toes as they dug into the ground, his purring only growing louder as a result.

Sarina, meanwhile, merely giggled as she slid her paw through the suburban cityscape, purring as she savored how the crumbling ground felt against her paw, and how those multitudes of houses felt just so delightful splintering against advancing digits like hers. She even raised that paw from time to time to lift it above droves of homes, just to “slowly” press it down, feeling the buildings crunch and splinter in such great detail, causing her to also huff and purr as she savored the sensations, all until she felt the ground itself sink beneath her weight, enough so to cause nearby structures to fall.

Caleb, meanwhile, stretched his wings wider before he flapped them just once, causing Sarina to giggle as she felt the gust of wind from them, something which felt just like a gentle wind to her. But oh at her feet and behind her was that all different, for the wall of wind moved by those wings struck like a freight train, practically atomizing houses as they exploded into showers of splinters and shattered rock.

Trees fared no better, neither did furs or vehicles, who were all torn asunder and broken apart by the wall of air. It swept outwards from there in a great big cone, flattening the forest the two had walked out of earlier, sweeping over the land with such force the two watched airplanes explode as they were struck by it.

They watched forests flatten, and the topsoil peel off the ground, lakes being blown away, with entire highways, towns, and streets vanishing in the debris showers. And the sight just made the two chuckle and giggle, after which Sarina gently rubbed a hand over Caleb’s chest, drawing out another purr from him as she winked to him before starting her own walk.

“You make for such a good view~ I’m almost tempted to shrink right down there to look up at you~” she flirtatiously teased as her tail brushed against him as she walked past him. “But alas we do have something important of yours to release, don’t we~?” she added on as she peeked over her shoulder with a teasing expression, her paws carelessly stomping their way across the suburbs all the while.

“Mrrrf~ indeed we do~” Caleb responded with his strong voice, the volume of both causing more cries to echo around them, each multiplied further once he also began to walk. The earthquakes from the two walking at their prior size had been bad enough for the furs near them to contend with, yet as they now walked was any prior quake quickly dwarfed by seismic waves of such immense force that even the worst of doomsday shows could hardly ever do them justice.

The ground rippled around their every step, heaving, even, in huge explosions of soil and bedrock, forming jagged craters while cracks spiderwebbed out in every single direction, following in the heels of a shockwave like that of a small yield atomic bomb. Their steps did not yet strike the ground with the force of truly catastrophic meteors, yet they were close, and those who fled from them, or who just stared on as helpless spectators, could only wonder just how immense the two would plan to get.

Yet a conversation of similar topic was had between the two as they walked, a conversation within their minds, using no physical words to convey their thoughts and feelings, and one which there was no exterior proof of, not even changes of expression.

“Might as well try this~” Caleb’s voice spoke to Sarina’s mind, to which he heard an amused giggle back from her, and a hasty reply of “oh~ yes~ that is something I forgot to test~” given back to him as she so casually flattened a mountain under her paw, its ancient stone crumbling like gravel by the press of dark padded panda sole, causing enormous landslides to fan out around the step.

“Good way to plan in secret~” Caleb replied to her some as he casually squashed a lake underpaw, the size of his whole paw dwarfing even it, causing its water to rush out from under the step, to the point of even reversing the direction of the river which fed it. “Because I wondered how far we should take it? With us being able to reset things, we could have fun until we break the world, and then repeat it. But...” he began to speak to her mind, pausing for a moment just for her to reply with a “but not without making sure there’s no other kind people here, right?” to which she got an agreeing response.

And thus they did just that as they walked, both focusing on these divine senses of theirs, letting them encompass more and more of the world, looking for any fur not corrupt and selfish, anyone who they would have a reason to spare. Yet...there were none, no matter how far they expanded their search, no matter how many corners of the globe they sensed, they found nothing.

“They’re all...?” Sarina begun to speak in Caleb’s mind, Caleb himself quickly replying with a “just like in the dreams, yes. The fox and sergal did say we were a rarity, but...is that really how the world is? It always felt tailored for the dreams...not...how reality was.” The two immediately after continued to expand their senses, their stride stopping for a moment to focus entirely on letting their senses spread and search; they sensed other worlds across the galaxy, then the galaxy as a whole...then others, and without a single change.

It was certainly a shock to the two, who stared into each other’s eyes as they shared their feelings on the matter, a mixture of sadness at that fact, and a strong intent to find someone, at least one other kind soul in the universe, yet to what seemed like little avail. “but...what about beyond?” Sarina asked in Caleb’s mind, the two thinking for a moment, not even knowing IF another universe could exist; yet then they tried, and they sensed it, more universes, their senses picking up on them each.

And just as they sensed another universe as void as their own, then a second, then at last a third, their eyes opened up in surprise as they felt it, other kind souls, caring ones inhabiting a single lone world which they had colonized. Those kind souls seemed to originate from a civilization far more advanced than theirs, and were a collection of Earth species and species the two had never before seen or felt, yet they existed.

“That’s...should we...go there?” Sarina asked in Caleb’s mind, before adding on a “after this, I mean. Maybe we should leave this universe and live with them?” to which she got a nod from Caleb.

“I think so” he replied in her head. “Let us have our fun here, and let us go to them after. I feel they are afraid of something, they need us” to which Sarina nodded.

“Then, let us not hold back with this world, then~” she said out loud, smiling again, having hope in her heart once more to find some other kind people now that she and Caleb had felt them, knowing they exist. And with a nod given by Caleb, the two immediately continued their walk, shaking the ground around them as furs who cowered and hid after their stroll ended now scattered once more as they neared.

The city towards which they headed was packed full of panic as people tried as best as they could to flee, the government trying, yet failing to organize evacuations while the ground quaked like never before. And each step the two took caused stronger shaking to sweep through the metropolis, each wave of apocalyptic seismic energy knocking countless furs off their feet to the point where most could hardly move a foot between each quake.

Despite the time it had been given to prepare, had the city’s evacuations made woefully little progress, and though efforts had greatly sped up once the two headed towards it, had little actual progress been made since then; and by the time their shadow begun to creep over the city were no evacuation vessel even half-full! Yet the two stopped as they reached the city’s outskirts, sharing playful and plotting smirks as they surveyed the cityscape at their feet, seeming to quite enjoy watching the dense crowds flee from their perspectives that high up.

“Now~ what do we do with you, little ones~?” Sarina spoke, her deafening words causing crowds to fall in pain, the screaming voices seeming to cause nothing more than amusement to form on her lips. “Oh~ I’m sorry, was that too much~?” she giggled some after that “I am just speaking normally, don’t be such crybabies~” she added on, poking her tongue out to them as she leaned over the suburbs to gleefully watch the chaos below.

“But, they will do well as an audience” Caleb spoke after that as he begun to rise a paw above vast swaths of the suburbs, purring as he heard the screams from below louden as countless tiny furs watched his paw glide above their heads, casting them into shadow as the sole presented itself above. It fell without warning, drawing out new and louder screams and even shrieks as furs dove to the ground in the final moments before countless neighborhoods vanished under Caleb’s paw, scores of houses and countless furs crushed in the blink of an eye with one huge boom.

And the ground rippled around it, a shockwave sweeping out, pulverizing and tearing buildings apart, while mercilessly mangling both furs and vehicles; and he was already taking another step after that, his other paw slamming down with force as he purred, huffing strongly and dominantly as he licked his maw now that he properly stood on the city. Sarina watched him with a playful gaze, then walked closer to caress his shaft once more, to which he purred and groaned with lust, watching as she aimed that shaft for the downtown districts of the city.

But Caleb meanwhile reached for her, his large hands grasping her waist once more to hoist her up, to which she made a surprised, yet gleeful sound as she once more found herself risen high up, causing Caleb’s muzzle to be perfectly in height with her groin. And then, for all around to see, he begun to nuzzle against her labia, drawing out such deep and yearning moans from her as the massive chimera wasted no time before he let his tongue slide across that sensitive womanhood, teasing those swollen vaginal lips with his spiky tongue, working with skill to fill her with pleasure.

And those around them watched while they cowered, the deafening moans shaking the ground as they watched Sarina spread her toes wide, her hands quickly back to holding onto Caleb’s horns as he ate her out, his tongue soon to push into her vagina itself to once more lick it. But as Caleb did so, did her paws press down onto his massive shaft, purrs mixing in with her moans as she felt it throb so strongly as she used her paws to aim it for the city, even stroking its firm and throbbing flesh with her soles.

Her moans then turned an even louder volume once she felt Caleb’s tail maw nuzzle towards her rear, before giving way to its tongue, which slowly licked across her tail hole, teasing it while Caleb continued his licks, his snout almost pushing right into her vagina! His tongue was reaching far into it, sliding over those needy walls, exploring every single inch as its spikes ground against the soft flesh, each one giving her tsunamis of pleasure.

Her paws, meanwhile, stroked and rubbed against the shaft with even more need and lust, massaging it with her soles as she swayed her tail with pleasure and need, a smile on her muzzle as she stretched out more, arching her back in pure and utter bliss as she purred with eyes closed. She could feel the strong throbs of that shaft, purring amidst her moans as she let her paws explore its firm form, hearing his deep groans as he felt her paws grind against that member.

Furs around them tried to flee as best as they could even above the deafening sounds, many of them already struck deaf by the volume of their passion, yet even then finding the sheer concussive force of their voices to cause pain and damage. But that wasn't to be their only threat for long, for that huge chimera shaft was quickly dripping thick drops of pre onto the ground, the first of which quickly grew as a huge bead of liquid from the slit; it gleamed in the light of the sun as it grew, swelling until it was dislodged with a single throb, and sent soaring towards the ground below.

The enormous droplet crashed into the suburban landscape moments later with immense force, crushing a multitude of houses beneath it in one swift impact so forceful it punched a massive crater into suburbia. An actual shockwave then swept out from what was "just" the impact of a single precum drop, knocking furs over while they scrambled to flee, just to be left gawking at the splash of pre-sex behind them.

Then followed other droplets, each just as huge as the ones before, and dripping down onto the suburbs in one massive series of drops which soon changed into a continuous stream of thick viscous pre. The drops bombarded the landscape, forming a massive lake of pre-sex, which then continued to spread as more and more pre joined the continuous and faucet-like flow from Caleb's cock, which seemed as if it was almost drooling from how much was flowing from it.

The groaning of strained houses filled the area ahead of the slowly advancing tsunami of pre as it spread out, its surface tension pushing on fragile little houses, which groaned as their wooden or brick structure tried desperately to hold back against the weight of a chimera god's pre. Groaning quickly changed to splintering and snapping sounds as the houses begun to collapse, often after a wall gave in, causing screams to erupt from within as hiding furs were suddenly washed away by the slick and sticky liquid.

The collapsing houses were engulfed in the pre before long while it spread outwards, its apparent speed slow, painfully so as it flowed out across suburbia at a speed far faster than it seemed. Sharp crunches and screams sounded whenever a vehicle or person were struck by the tide, neither ever finding themselves immediately engulfed, as they were instead forced beneath a mass of pre of such immense mass it easily crushed even the toughest vehicles and furs in an instant.

Just a few were “lucky” enough to avoid being crushed, and to instead be pulled into the spreading mass of pre, whose thick and viscous mass was next to impossible to move within, dooming them to float there as they clawed at the liquid in desperation to seek air they would never get. And above them continued the two deities, the flow of pre only speeding up as Sarina’s skillful paws stroked that huge chimera shaft, working with years of experience doing what she could to pleasure Caleb.

And it was working, for that huge shaft soon begun to shoot thick ropes of precum, each comparable in size with him to a full release from most furs. And these huge ropes crashed into the suburbs like cannon shots, pummeling them and the outer districts of the downtown area with meteoric force, vaporizing multiple neighborhoods while others were washed away or crushed by the tail of each rope.

And these only grew larger and more frequent with time as the two deities continued their pleasure, Sarina’s moaning growing only louder while Caleb’s did just as much, both for now ignoring the people around them as they focused on their pleasure first. But then they paused their fun, their eyes meeting each other with plotting gazes as Caleb let his muzzle retreat alongside his tail maw, both licking their lips as he looked to the city with a smirk, then at Sarina.

He began to move immediately without even setting her down onto the ground, a rumble booming from him as he walked towards the city’s dense core, carrying Sarina all the while. The screaming masses down below scattered and screamed, crying out in horror as the two loomed above them, the blaring sirens stuttering with every single step as they awaited their end, just to find the titans to stop just above them.

Caleb’s shaft and orbs loomed above, as did Sarina’s lifted body, leaving furs under them to wonder what they could plan. Yet the two then stared down at the cityscape beneath them with plotting smirks and gazes, causing furs to freeze up with fright as they stared back, most screams silenced by the view.

“You are such a good audience, little ones~ cheering us on in such a way~” Sarina said between pants and lusty huffs, giving a playful grin to the tinies below them as she stretched in Caleb’s grasp.

“So~ we believe it proper to give you a far better show” Caleb followed up with his own words as he begun to move Sarina above his throbbing cock tip, all the while his tail maw moved out of the way to let the tiny people stare up.

“And~ for you to witness a first~ because we’ve never done this before~ and we’d love for such an audience to witness this~” Sarina said to them as she braced herself, spreading her legs wide as she looked at the cock, itself so immense it rivaled her torso in dimensions even when she was as tall as Caleb! But as its fleshy spike and tip aimed for her tail hole could she only brace herself more, holding her breath as she readied herself, being eager to see how much she could spread.

At first the cock tip “merely” teased against her rear, letting its fleshy spike caress the little pink ring, drawing out a deep moan from Sarina, who could easily feel its girth just from that. She then moaned oh so much louder as the tip pushed into her rear, spreading it far and wide as it intruded deeper, causing her eyes to close with pleasure as it burrowed in.

It spread her enough for the tip itself to push in, spreading her far wider than she had ever been spread, and causing a loud “AHHH!” to escape her, followed by the deepest moan yet. Horrified furs around the two stared up at them as the cock pushed into her rear, spreading her insides beyond anything they had ever experienced, or even expected to experience, enough so to cause a visible bulge to travel up her front!

It burrowed deeper into her, every single detail of the shaft visible upon that bulge, all the while Sarina only moaned louder, her back arching as furs around the two were left to wonder how that monster of a cock could even fit into her like that. She grasped Caleb’s shoulders as she was pushed deeper onto it, her eyes rolled back as they remained half-closed, her whole body twitching and shuddering with pleasure.

The feeling of the cock inside of her was intense, even more so with how much it was spreading her, far enough to be impossible without their powers making her stretch as much as she was; but gods it felt amazing, unlike anything she had ever felt before, and as she felt his knot press against her rear she could only brace herself more. But Caleb didn’t push further down at that point, and instead begun to slide her up the shaft’s length, drawing out more moans from her as she felt the spiky surface slide against her spread insides all the way until just the tip remained within.

Then he thrust her onto it again, causing another moan and gasp to escape her as it burrowed into her yet again, causing her toes to spread wide as she was once more overwhelmed by pleasure, her insides squeezing around the cock and clenching around it, yearning for more. And more she would get as Caleb begun to rhythmically lift her up and down onto the cock, his strong muscles able to lift her so effortlessly despite their equal size, leaving her practically howling with pleasure.

His tail maw meanwhile moved up to her large boobs, nuzzling towards them to draw out even more sounds of pleasure from Sarina, who soon felt its eager caress towards her nipples too, drawing out more moans as the tail maw’s tongue soon licked those sensitive nips. And that happened all the while Caleb continued to thrust her onto his cock, moving her up and down above the city’s downtown districts, each moment drawing more cries from beneath them as furs struggled to move from the torrents of displaced air that struck their bodies with hurricane force that pushed them over; some gusts were even strong enough to dent metal! Their deafening voices made it all worse, and left the furs around them with ringing ears at worst, many of them practically in shellshock.

The sights were almost as horrifying as the reality of it itself was, and furs all around just stared in shock and horror at the shameless act done by these two gods, whose sizes were now tall enough for even Everest to seem like naught but a step to them. And Sarina was quickly feeling herself getting close, helped a lot by feeling those thick shots of pre literally filling her akin to, and even beyond what a normal fur's release would; her insides were being lubricated by it while Caleb's cock only continued to pump that dense pre into her, letting its warmth spread through her, and letting her feel how close he was getting.

For gods how that cock throbbed, how it pulsed and moved her with its mass; she could hardly keep fully conscious, for her mind was so overwhelmed by pleasure, her paws trying to rub against his orbs, her ears listening to his groans and pleasure roars. And he was speeding up continuously, each thrust faster than the last, each one accompanying faster throbbing from his shaft, making it clear that he was also rapidly approaching his climax.

Pre was already dripping down from her rear and his cock, flowing over the latter, then over his orbs and her paws as they rubbed against them; and from there those drops drip dropped down onto the cityscape below, scattering crowds who witnessed those huge orbs collide with skyscrapers that exploded as they and their neighbors were annihilated by single drops. And more just came as Caleb's shaft pumped more into her, having already filled most of her with pre alone, with his release still seeming to be just on the edge, just a few thrusts away...

And then it came, arriving with force as the massive chimera let out a massive roar, stomping forcefully as he pushed Sarina firmly onto the cock just as it erupted. It shot a load so immense into her that her eyes sprung open as she felt it rush into her guts and belly, filling them all within a second as they tried to futilely clench around the shaft, just to be spread by the sheer pressure of the semen tide.

It rushed up her throat and squirt out of her mouth, masking her moaning as the squirt of thick white liquid arched over Caleb's shoulder to crash into the craters behind him, Sarina's eyes watching with surprise, yet also quite the blush to boot. More cum shot out of her rear as well, gushing from it onto the city under them like water from a poorly sealed hose, the weight and force of the semen tide flattening the downtown districts in seconds.

The flooding volume of cum, which quickly surpassed most lakes, was quick to wash out from there, its surface tension toppling skyscrapers and crushing crowds as they cowered from the pleasure roars and moans booming from above, the drips and squirts of cum coming from her rear seeming to never stop. And the release indeed went on for what felt like an eternity until the shaft began to relax, leaving the two titans panting in their afterglow, not even paying mind to the city as they stared into each other's eyes.

Sarina tried to swallow the thick cum now in her maw as her insides continued to squeeze around the thick shaft, which she felt relax inside of her, shrinking a bit as it begun to go flaccid, giving her just enough extra room to swallow down properly. The tail maw also let go of her nipple after that, licking its own lips after having once more been given some squirts of milk for its troubles, after which it slowly caressed the pink nipple to draw out another moan as it cleaned it.

Caleb then lifted her up once more, letting his shaft leave her rear with a loud plop, after which it immediately dropped down into a flaccid, yet still immensely girthy manner to hang between his legs, cum flowing onto the cityscape from its coated mass and from its tip, while even larger volumes flowed from Sarina's still spread anus. Thus the flood sped up even more while the two deities basked in their afterglow, especially Sarina, who tried to stretch in her exhaustion.

"T-that....oh gods, that...that was, oh man" Sarina panted out, huffing as she gasped for air, shuddering still from the sensations of that entire experience, many of which remained as she still felt how spread she was, all the while she felt her insides contract more and more.

"Mrrf, it was wonderful~" Caleb responded with a smile, himself nowhere near as exhausted as Sarina as he watched her with a happy smile. "But, let me aid you a bit, love~" he said, Sarina giving him a curious expression back, just to immediately blush as she found herself upon a single palm of his, her body suddenly so small she could sprawl across the palm itself like a little doll.

"Relax now~ and let your big chimera help~" Caleb spoke to her as his muzzle descended towards her, his tongue licking his lips before pressing against her form, causing her to moan once more as it slid across her body, easily slurping up his cum. She grasped the tongue as it slid over her, just to find the snout of the tail maw to nuzzle against her head, to which she planted a happy kiss upon its lips, which was quickly returned as it kissed back, the two making out as she moaned from Caleb's care.

She stretched upon his palm, forgetting about the world around them as she felt his tongue explore her body, sliding over her curvy frame to lick off each and every trace of cum, focusing especially much on her groin, which it dutifully licked again and again. And then the tail maw stopped its kiss, letting Caleb's muzzle plant a deep kiss upon her whole body, to which she oh so tiredly hugged it back, her muzzle eager to smooch it.

"We...we need to do that again" she said between panting, her normally teasing attitude replaced by exhaustion as she clung to her lover's snout, feeling him nod in agreement to her words.

"Soon, soon, but first, relax my dear, then we will continue with this world~" Caleb responded to her, to which she nodded and continued to hug his muzzle, letting energy come back to her bit by bit, aided surprisingly much by the cum within her absorbing into her body, filling her with more energy, possibly by Caleb's will.

And it wasn't long before she was ready, something Caleb sensed, thus he moved his hands together and grew her back to her previous size, still holding her up high for her to survey the damage their releases did, after which he put her down away from the mess. Her paws crashed into the outskirts of the city with huge kathooms, followed by deep earthquake-inducing purring from her as she giggled some and looked around herself, then at Caleb, who oh so happily stared back.

"Hee, we did quite the number on this place, huh~? Or well, you did, you gorgeous beast~" Sarina giggled to him with a wink as he merely huffed back, to which her attention quickly fell onto his shaft once more.

"Awww, but you were so kind as to clean me, and didn't even take care of that, let me help then~" she purred as she leaned towards it, her hands grasping his hips as her muzzle neared the flaccid shaft. Her tongue extended immediately to lick against its pink surface, drawing out deep and beastly purrs from Caleb, who curled his toes into the ruined cityscape, savoring that delightful sensation. She closed her eyes as she licked, swallowing mouthfuls of thick chimera cum after each slurp, working hard and skillfully to clean the shaft bit by bit.

Her work even caused some final squirts of cum to shoot from its tip and onto the flooded city, further adding to the volume and speed of the tsunami of cum. But she worked with enough efficiency to clean it quickly, after which she stood up and smiled, gazing at the shaft while licking her maw in a rather playful manner.

"There, all clean~" she teased as she stretched, all before looking back to him. "Now~ let's find something more" she added on, her gaze returning to the survivors around them. "Because, and I'm sorry for this little ones, but you're just not up for the task! Just a bit of passion and boom, millions of you dead! But don't worry, we'll leave you to have fun with the rest~" she giggled some as she looked to Caleb, who looked back to her with a smile as the two turned to once more head into the countryside.

Countless more furs were left scattering as the world quaked anew from the resuming stride, each one frenzied by panic as they scrambled in the path of the titans, trying as best as they could to flee over ruin and collapse, over warped and cracked ground that only continued to move and tilt with each step the two unleashed upon the cityscape. Drove of houses vanished beneath each stomp, with them thousands of furs whose final moments were spent staring up at a rising paw dotted with the crushed remains of people, buildings, and vehicles.

Chunks of the city's bedrock rose, dipped, and even tilted and buckled ahead and around the two, visibly moving with each step as seismic waves swept through them, creating cliffs of warped ground where flat suburbia once stood, while opening deep chasms in the ground, allowing for rivers and lakes to flood into them and into the depths of the world. Yet the two titans gave but a moment's notice to anything like that, their eyes instead fixated more upon the landscape ahead of them, of cities and towns connected by the tiny black lines of highways, each of which could likely easily see the two even past the horizon itself.

Panic swept through each and every one, the earlier events having been put on broad display for them all, not just through news report from the city in its final moments, but also by most of them seeing the two and hearing both their sounds of pleasure, and their booming voices. And none of them would be foolish enough to think that they'd be spared a similar fate once the titans would reach their cities, thus every single fur thought of nothing else than fleeing or hiding, to get away no matter what they had to do to achieve that.

The countryside at their feet also came with similar panic, as furs trapped in farms or on highways tried their hardest to flee, most taking to offroad paths to swerve and dash away at the fastest speeds they could, speeds which were but a fraction of that which the two achieved merely by a casual stroll. Fields of crops were blown over by the shockwaves of each step, countless furs knocked over in them, and vehicles flipped and mangled, farmsteads blown to tiny splinters and debris by proximity alone less than a second before the ground itself buckled, nearly rippling around the steps of the two.

Ground caught too close to each gargantuan step was also flung up high, almost exploding around the epicenters of their steps, and cracking open in massive cracks that swept outwards from each, swallowing entire highways, and also cutting off even more escape routes. What had always seemed like such unmoving earth, eternal and ancient landmasses carved through countless eons by processes the people of the world were still discovering more about, were beyond malleable to the two deities, whose every step reshaped the world around them, punching deep paw-shaped craters in the wake of each step, bordering each of those with jagged and mountainous ridges that loomed above the damaged countryside.

Flat landscape bordered by tall mountains was quickly turned into hills of buckled ground dotted with enormous jagged ranges of crater ridges, the mountains once bordering those gorgeous landmasses suddenly naught but gravel piles after the step of a divine paw crushed them without resistance. The lands were quickly almost unrecognizable even by air, up where countless more planes were trying to escape the two, needing to dodge around their enormous torsos and arms, seeming to not even be noticed by the two; that served them no good, however, as most of them still found themselves struck by a limb or body, exploding into bright, yet comparably tiny fireballs against their unyielding frames.

The newly ascended deities paid little mind to all that, however, and merely walked onwards towards the distant cities, eager expressions filling their muzzles while horrified furs bore witness to Caleb's shaft, flaccid at the start of their stroll, hardening again as more and more thoughts filled his mind. Many towns found themselves far enough to the sides of the titans to believe themselves safe for the time being, masses of them gathering in streets to just stare in fear and despair at the two figures way past their horizon, those whose every step was still felt as a rather noticeable tremor beneath their feet.

Yet their eyes would also fall upon that serpentine tail maw, which seemed to scan the landscape way more than the two did, its cyan eyes examining the patchwork landscape of farm fields and tiny settlements, all obliterated by proximity to the two. But then it raised its attention further away, and onto those places out of its reach, its eyes suddenly locking onto one such town, locking eyes with its denizens, who all froze in fright once more.

The idea that they were far beyond even its reach did swirl around in their minds, even though that primal freezing fright locked them in place like deer in headlights, few even noticing the trailing line of light forming near that maw, nor the similar, though far smaller one streaking across the sky just a building's height above them. Then the snake maw lashed out towards the line, which tore open to form a gargantuan portal, through which it struck, emerging within that little town at a size which made that head no taller than most furs.

With maw agape it lashed out towards one, its fangs biting into the fur as screams erupted around it from furs scattering from the caught one, who cried out in a mixture of fear and desperation before the tongue of the maw wrapped around his waist, forcefully and violently tugging him in. The crack of his bones and shriek of pain he released vanished moments later within the maw as it swallowed down, wasting no time to lash out towards another fur, its fangs biting onto her waist to pull her into the maw, flicking her up just a bit for the maw to catch and swallow her whole.

It then came for another, then another still, mercilessly lunging with its fanged maw, trapping the people in its grasp and pulling or throwing them into its depths, to swallow each and every single one whole. Gunfire from one terrified fur caught its attention next, the bullets bouncing off its scales with bright sparks, even including those eyes, to which the maw's tongue flicked out towards the gunman, in one swift move wrapping around pistol and arms both to yank him closer, and into the gaping maw.

The crack of dislocated shoulders from such a tug barely had time to sound above the scream of pain before that fur was thrown into the maw, which snapped shut behind him, after which the maw swallowed once more. The ominous sounds of gunfire could be heard from time to time within the maw as the fur managed to somehow still fire a few shots, the sound muffled, and the snake maw seeming uncaring and unbothered about the fact.

Yet next it went for a car, its occupants screaming in horror as the huge serpentine jaws clamped around it, itself also almost as tall as the head, yet the forceful bite of its jaws already crushing the vehicle, fangs piercing through its metal as if it was clay. It begun to chomp on it, pulling it ever-deeper as its jaws continued to deform and compact it, the people inside screaming and bashing against windows, trying to get free, trying to escape.

The light from outside vanished more and more, replenished only in the few moments the maw opened to gulp down another part of their vehicle, the pink fleshy passage of its throat soon taking over their view as the titan tail swallowed. Those outside could see the car form a bulge along the tail, a bulge that slid slowly back through the portal, becoming visible upon the tail in the distance for moments until the thickness of it hid the vehicle from view.

But by that point had most fled far enough away from the tail maw to be outside of its reach, to which it merely retreated back through the portal, a rumble of content booming from it as it closed the gateway behind it. A moment's sensation of relief swept through the townsfolk, who continued to flee from a feeling of unease, as if this fortune would be short-lived, a feeling they would quickly realize was all too true.

For mere seconds after the maw retreated and closed its portal, would it lunge again, another set of portals forming as it suddenly lunged out just ahead of the fleeing crowds. They dove out of the way, screams of absolute horror crying out as they tried to dodge, just for two to be caught by the titan maw's grasp, screams crying out as the maw forcefully yanked them back through the portal, to which they emerged at gargantuan sizes on the other side, yet still caught like rats in its clutches.

Yet the maw would not chomp those furs down like it had done with the others, and instead continued its rapid movement to fling them away, towards Caleb and Sarina, sending those two furs flailing and screaming above a world far smaller now compared to them than before. The couple looked towards the screams with smirks, the flailing furs locking eyes with them just in time to see Sarina raise a hand towards them, causing their screams to grow even louder just before the hand caught them in its grasp.

"Well, hello there~" Sarina giggled with amusement as the two furs squirmed in her grasp, pleading eyes meeting hers as she examined the two furs. "So nice of you to join in~" she continued to speak as another two shrieks sounded from behind her as two more furs were flung by the tail maw towards them, these two caught by Caleb instead.

"You're just two delightfully cute saviors~ you know~?" she continued to speak with such a casually playful tone as she and Caleb walked, a smirk on her muzzle amidst her innocent expression, seeming entertained by the confused, yet slightly hopeful expressions which met her.

"Because...I'm just sooooo peckish after all this fun~ and you~" she continued to speak as she raised the two furs above her mouth, gaping wide beneath them, letting them stare into her maw. "You're just what I need~" her voice sounded above their panicked cries and pleas, the two begging her, yet to no avail as the strong fingers around them slowly let go, the two clinging to them tightly, clutching onto fur to not fall.

Yet all she needed was a light shake, and the two lost their grip with horrified cries, falling from hand, and down towards the gaping panda maw, which snapped shut just as soon as they fell into it. Yet their legs remained outside, flailing around as Sarina purred and murred, an elongated “mmmmmm~” booming from her as her tongue begun to explore the two furs, tasting their bodies and squeezing them towards the roof of her maw, ignoring the cracks and cries of pain as the “gentle” squeeze of her tongue oh so easily fractured bone.

Then she sucked their legs into her maw and angled it back up, after which she gulped them down, spectators witnessing a small squirming bulge sliding down her throat, then into her chest while she opened her maw to release a satisfied exhale. Licking her maw, she glanced towards Caleb, who had guided his two furs towards his shaft, their panic only growing the closer they came, pleading eyes staring at him, at her, and at the tail maw, then even a plane flying nearby, whose passengers and crew both panicked to dodge between the gods, and more so upon seeing another two titans grasped by Caleb, “titans” they had all seen get yanked out of a portal moments prior.

Their pleas would only grow more desperate as one of them found himself pressed towards the cock tip, his paws pressing towards it, trying to push against Caleb’s casual press, trying to avoid that enormous slit, yet not lasting long before his footing slipped. And with a shriek was he pushed right in, his paws vanishing in, then his legs and waist while his hands clawed at Caleb’s scaled hand, trying to escape, trying to do anything to spare his life.

Yet he was so casually pushed right in, all the while Caleb’s loud and booming roar-like moans sounded, causing their ears to ring as the first fur was pushed right in, spreading the urethra just a little bit. The second fur was then brought up, this one face-first against the slit, his crying pleas once more falling on deaf ears as Caleb quite gladly begun to insert him into that huge cock, another purr rumbling from him amidst a moan as he felt that little body spread the shaft.

The fur’s torso followed suit, then his waist while Caleb soon let go, letting his flailing limbs tell the tale of his struggles as the cock sucked him deeper with each and every single throb, the odd crack and yelp of pain emerging from it as the urethra squeezed around the doomed fur with force that could easily snap bone. And it wasn’t long before even his paws vanished inside of Caleb’s cock, to which the titan rumbled more in pleasure after having watched Sarina snack on the two she was given, his own tongue sliding over his lips.

The tail maw itself had been busy too, catching more and more people to snack on, eagerly and hungrily chomping them up, flinging many up into the sky above the world, just to snap its jaws around them, pulling them into its throat, all to feed both it and Caleb. But as the two titans finished their first furs would the tail maw immediately stop eating to instead fling more towards them, letting those soar above the world towards the two.

And they gladly caught them, Sarina playfully squeezing a palm of 4 trapped furs while Caleb’s maw snapped around one while 3 more were caught in his grasp, a purr once more escaping him as he let his spiky tongue forcefully squeeze the one in his maw, exploring his taste, careless of the damage done to his body. And as his hands began to guide the other 3 furs towards his shaft, one holding the mass of them, and the other taking one after the other to insert them into his shaft, would the whimpers and cries from his maw soon change into shrieks and crunches as he begun to chew, his purr growing louder, much more so, while blood begun to trickle down from his lips, the cries of the fur slowly fading as more crunches were heard, all until Caleb raised his maw and gulped it all down.

A blood-soaked tongue then licked his lips clean as he huffed, still inserting the furs into his cock, the fate of their fellow furs doing much to inspire their pleas and attempts to free themselves; yet not a single one was able to even begin escaping before they were pushed into the huge cock. Caleb's orbs had by now begun to gurgle as they churned their meal, screams audible from within as the furs trapped there bashed against the walls of his orb, trying to free themselves, trying to call for help, all the while the cum within burnt against their bodies, which slowly lost their mass as they were churned down into seed.

And more of them would come, Caleb eagerly shoving as many furs into his cock as he could, being given more as the tail maw caught others, which it flung to him, letting him feed his orbs as much as he wanted to. Sarina, meanwhile, was holding her 4 furs in two hands, licking her maw as she brought one of those hands up towards her muzzle, smirking playfully as she watched their terrified eyes as she sniffed on them, after which she snuck her lips closer.

Her tongue slipped out from between her lips after that, slowly licking across those two furs, who cried out in fear as the soft, warm muscle slid over them, coating them with just a bit of saliva, leaving them shuddering with fright. Yet then her lips puckered, pressing towards them in a playful kiss that brought with it expressions of shock and surprise from the two, who stared at her with confusion as they felt her kiss press so gently on them.

But then one felt a suction, shrieking as his arms were sucked into the maw, which quickly slurped him up before the other could even react; and then, giggling, Sarina opened her maw just to let the other fur see the first claw against the tongue as he slid down towards the throat, trying oh so desperately to find grip. Yet his attempts were as futile as any, and with a cry would he vanish down the throat with naught but a light gulp from Sarina, who merely giggled some as she purred out.

"That makes 3~ 3 in my belly~ and 3 in my grasp~" she giggled, still watching Caleb stuff his shaft with furs, his intentions clear to fill up again and be ready for another go. "But~ I don't think I need a whole 3 more furs to be sated~ so which one of you to pick~?" she said with a playful tone, giggling further as the 3 furs begun to panic, all of them trying to offer the others, trying to give reasons to eat the others instead of themselves.

"Awww, no one~? You can't offer others, you know~ that wouldn't be fair~" she continued with a sly tone of voice. "But very well~ I'll just have....you~" she said as she raised one of the ones trapped in her other hand, the one trying to actively push the other fur in front of him. He cried out as her lips slid over his head, then his shoulders, the other fur whimpering and crying while her target thrashed and screamed even louder than before, just for a quick suck to slurp him right in.

And Sarina immediately angled her head up, gulping her prey down with one swift act as she let her purr rumble louder now than ever before, after which she turned her attention back towards the furs still in her grasp. She now had one in each of her hands, who both stared at her with pleading eyes, tears running down their cheeks as they whimpered and cried, their sounds only loudening as she pressed them both towards her slim belly.

“Hear that~?” she asked with a sly tone of voice as the furs could indeed hear screams from within, the sounds of a gurgling and quite happy stomach mixing in with the sounds of furs being digested alive, a mixture of cries for help and shrieks of pain filling the space, including the splashing of stomach juices by limbs trying to move or escape them.

“For sparing you that fate I sure hope you will do well now~ because if you will I just might let you go!” Sarina added on with a giggle as she immediately moved the two furs together in the grasp of just one hand, before rapidly moving them down along her body, sliding them over her belly, then her groin. Cries escaped from them once more as they were left staring at her womanhood, their bodies pressed towards it as they squirmed, plead, and cried, desperate eyes staring at her with horror.

Yet all they got back from Sarina was a playful smirk, her tongue poking out from between her lips, just for the furs to feel her begin to push them inside, causing them to panic and push against her labia, to which she only moaned from their struggles, causing her, in turn, to push harder. They shrieked and cried as they slipped inside the tight passage, feeling the soft pink flesh surround them, squeezing their bodies eagerly as she continued to slip them in, each inch of their bodies drawing out such loving moans from her.

And she pushed until nothing of the two stuck out from her womanhood, her body shuddering with pleasure, her eyes closing for but a moment as she idly moaned feeling the furs in her vagina squirm and resist, causing it to only squeeze on and tug them harder. She then looked towards Caleb who had by now finished stuffing his shaft, his orbs visibly larger, with many small bulges visible from bodies tightly compacted within them, the idle movement and struggles of those furs visible oh so clearly.

“My, you got yourself quite stuffed, didn’t you~?” Sarina giggled as she leaned towards him just a bit in their walk, Caleb chuckling back and huffing softly as he leaned back, the two sharing a moment’s kiss above the world as they walked. With eyes closed, they remained kissing, the thoom of their steps and the sirens of nearby cities being all the sound which was audible for a moment, just before another scream took their attentions.

The tail maw had flung another fur towards them as they were distracted, a playful expression on its muzzle as it itself was sated too. Sarina tried to reach for the fur as the kiss was released, her hand missing him just barely as he soared past her and above the two, before he fell down towards the ground.

A town was cast into panic as the “massive” feline fell towards it, his body 1.7 kilometers tall, far taller than the town itself was long, and the whole thing flailing in panic as he fell. The screams of masses were thus moments later silenced by a massive kathoom as his body impacted the ground, vaporizing the town in an instant as the ground ruptured around him, cracking and even heaving from the meteoric impact of feline “giant”.

His body slid across the ground, crumbling and prying topsoil and bedrock apart, annihilating a whole highway, then parts of a forest before it came to a rest, a mere wheeze of pain escaping him as his battered head tried to look back towards the two. His gaze was met by a playful expression from Sarina and an amused one from Caleb, both of them not quite looking at him, as they instead had been distracted by what lay at their paws, or rather, what they had just annihilated.

For the momentary distraction of kiss and the flailing soaring “tiny” had caused them both not to really notice where they had been walking, leaving their path straight through a city of such size that the two could easily cover its width with their thread. Sirens had blared from it, stuttering from each quake as waves of power outages swept through it, the rippling, buckling ground causing collapse en-masse ahead of the two, burying crowds in wreckage amidst their futile attempts to flee.

Suburbs, apartment complexes, and skyscrapers had all perished underpaw, crushed by footfalls of legendary proportions, even the tallest skyscrapers naught but tiny little toothpicks by size compared to the two. Huge fields of skyline had vanished beneath their every step, countless structures shattering like sand, just for surrounding ones to become vaporized by shockwaves and immense quakes that tore the very earth apart.

And by the time the two even noticed the city had they almost left it again, Sarina giggling with amusement as she looked back to see the devastation, her tongue poking out rather playfully to see countless eyes staring up at her from the few tens of thousands of survivors from what was seconds before millions. And she could sense that, sensing not just each of them, but also each casualty, causing her quite the apparent amusement as she merely winked their way with an innocent face.

“Awww, look what you did~” she said as her gaze looked back towards the fur that had distracted them, he who by now was trying to pull himself from the crater of his impact, his body battered and broken, yet still trying to crawl away. “We didn’t even see those down there thanks to you~ tsk tsk~” Sarina’s voice boomed above him as he crawled, whimpers of fear escaping him as he heard her teasing words, terrified and weak eyes staring back as they neared. “More than two million~ all snuffed out because of you~” her voice added on to finalize the taunting tease, her, Caleb, the fur, and all surrounding tinies knowing well that the fate of the city was in reality unchanged by the feline distraction.

“But~ it isn’t all his fault either~” she then continued as she peeked over her shoulder at the city behind her once more. “Because really, THAT is what you call a city~? your tallest structures were hardly half the height of my toes! So you truly have no right to complain, a bit of grass would hide your city entirely” she said, still as innocently as ever before her eyes continued towards the battered fur ahead of them.

Caleb was the one who found him in his direct path, to which Sarina watched with an amused gaze as he raised a paw above that one fur, who tried to plead with a weak voice as he stared up, seeing barely any recognition of him from the two as the paw fell. Surrounding people got to watch as that “titan” of a feline vanished under Caleb’s lion paw, a massive kathoom booming above the crunch and pop of his body, the ground around his impact rupturing like that around the other steps, the ground tearing open, blood gushing from beneath the paw, and Caleb’s purrs growing even more deafening than before.

Another step later, and the paw begun to shift, an idle crunch and crackle audible from it before it rose up again, revealing the deep crater it had punched into the ground, the crushed and almost unrecognizable remains of the feline stuck to paw and crater as it rose away. The sight caused many to freeze up, to witness a being that seemed godly in size moments before be reduced to...a crushed corpse was...beyond horrifying.

And yet the titans only walked onwards, smirks on their muzzles as they looked ahead now, and to two cities lying ahead of them, one at the mouth of a river near the coast, and the other “far” inland near a lake just upriver. And the two deities merely shared a plotting look before they moved in opposite directions, Sarina towards the coastal city while Caleb neared the lakeside one, shaft throbbing as the two headed towards their chosen prey, drinking in the sound of fear and fright from both.

Caleb reached his first, an expression of amusement spread across his muzzle as he surveyed the panic near him, witnessing the lake’s waters ripple from his every step while crowds of panicked furs fell en-masse even far from him. He soon towered above, a plotting stare travelling across the cityscape as he thought of what to do; meanwhile his paws had begun to walk across the suburbs, crushing countless homes with each and every step.

It took him just a step or two to reach the denser parts of this city, his stride immediately growing significantly slower as he begun to inhale, cowering furs watching clouds suck towards his nostrils as he breathed in, his chest expanding. And then he looked down, his mouth opening just to release a gargantuan pillar of fire at his feet, causing a chorus of screams to erupt even louder as the pillar of flame struck.

Miles wide, this firebreath vaporized countless neighborhoods of offices and apartment blocks, the air around it warping by the sheer heat it radiated, heat which caused any vegetation to burst into flame in a massive radius around it, with the closest ones to it even flat out incinerating. Crowds fell near the flame, their bodies instantly burnt to a crisp by the now superheated air, which caused the fuel of vehicles to ignite, the fire-facing walls of buildings scorching, and even drooping some by its heat.

And then it begun to move mere moments after striking, slowly traveling across the cityscape, leaving a deep and molten trench in its wake, with literally no trace left of the cityscape which once lay there. Furs watched as skyscrapers dwarfed by his toes seemed to evaporate as the flame touched them, the ground itself drooping as fires and explosions erupted all around the fire; the streets ahead of it were packed with fleeing crowds who screamed as that pillar of flame neared, just for them all to be nearly instantly vaporized into ash seconds before they'd even be struck by it.

The waters of river and lake both evaporated even when the flame was across the city from them, boats and ships trying to flee ending up on rapidly drying river and lakebed in the final moments before the fire got just close enough to ignite their fuel or hulls. Caleb worked slowly on this, carving out great gashes in the world with his firebreath, burning the city away, leaving nothing but molten slag in its wake as it snuffed out the city's downtown districts, then the ones outside, then the suburbs, including those behind him.

Mere moments of break were given between each attack, his breath vanishing for moments for him to inhale, just to unleash it upon another part of the city which stood no chance against it. His assault upon it was brief, and in the end one it finally stopped was there nothing left of the city but a wasteland of molten slag and deep trenches carved by the flame, his paws now stepping down on what felt and acted more like hot mud than ground, with no single trace remaining of the city.

And the city which was doomed to contend with Sarina had fared no better, its people fleeing as she walked closer, her divine steps causing enormous ripples in the sea, each like a massive tsunami that raced out meanwhile the panic of the crowds was only grown further by seeing what Caleb did to their neighbors. But Sarina had no interest in using any abilities, and merely giggled as she watched the crowds of people flee away from her, watching how they stumbled as they tried to rush into boats bobbing at sea and ports, or into other escape methods.

Their efforts were plagued with sabotage, either from trying to push others away, themselves being pushed away, or others being trampled by crowds causing them and others to fall over their bodies, slowing the evacuations down even more than if they had all just paid mind to each other. And the cataclysmic effects of her steps multiplied their struggle, each stomp shaking them off their feet, causing collapse all around them as the ground rippled and quaked, ships at sea struggling with the waves created by the shockwaves, many almost capsizing before she even reached the city.

But oh once she did, she did so with force, watching the city with a playful gaze, tongue poking out included, as she waltzed through it, watching the droves of homes which vanished beneath every single step, then how their neighboring neighborhoods seemed to almost disintegrate from the shockwaves which swept out from each step; and that was all while she gleefully paced around the city's exterior districts to flatten those shorter structures first. Thus she walked in a large arch around the city's center, paws almost as wide as the suburbs themselves flattening all which stood before them, ensuring that anything that survived was blasted into nothingness by the shockwaves that followed.

"Goodness~ houses shorter than fur hairs are wide, and skyscrapers so small even grass dwarfs them~ you tinies really need to work on your skills!" her deafening voice teased them before she spun around to properly face the downtown districts, after which she slowly raised a paw above it. "And not to talk about how fragile it all is! Come on, look at this~" she continued as the paw pressed down, slowly for the time being, "gently" pressing upon the spires of the tallest structures, and purring as she felt them snap, the buildings themselves crumbling against the sky of a panda sole.

"You put such pride in it, and alas they may as well be little sandcastles~" Sarina giggled as the paw continued to push down, crowds in its shadow fleeing around in frenzy, crying out, pleading and pushing as the padded sky descended, debris and destruction falling all around them. "Mmmm, no...that'd just be unfair to sandcastles~" her voice boomed just a split second before...thoom, the paw crashed down, causing a deep quake despite its "slow" speed, flattening scores of old and sturdy structures beneath itself.

"Fortunately~ it ain't all bad~" Sarina continued to tease the tiny furs as the paw then slid forth, toes spreading wide as it plowed its way through the cityscape, sending more furs fleeing as the structures behind them shattered and exploded against the advancing digits, the ground buckling around them, causing many structures to collapse before the toes even struck them!

"Because honestly, they do feel so good~" Sarina added on with a purr as she continued to push her paw forth until it reached the other side of the downtown district, where it rested at last. Most of the city's population was already dead by that "simple" act alone, leaving most of the few survivors now trapped between her thick panda toes, amidst ruined structures, many of which leaned against the arch where the toes met.

"Alas, sadly, you just don't last long~" her voice boomed again as the toes pressed together, screams erupting between them as skyscrapers shattered against the sides of toes, crowds flattened beneath them, or scooped up into the growing pile of rubble between them, which soon crunched between the toes with one deep thoom.

And then Sarina just raised her other paw, lifting it above the coastline, above fleeing ships, who tried to move as the paw fell, just to be struck and crushed with one immense boom. The impact created an immediate and immense splash of water around the paw, which immediately swept outwards in every direction as a colossal mega tsunami that capsized anything nearby; the wave continued on from there to soon wash over the city, erasing it off the face of the Earth, and drowning all who survived her “casual” play. Yet Sarina paid them no mind, and merely gazed towards Caleb, who stared back at her as the two locked eyes, smirks spread upon their muzzles.

Furs around them stared with horror, knowing not what they planned, nor what would come next; for though they heard no words exchanged, was it as if the two were communicating. Their answer came quick, however, yet not in the way they’d hope, as all furs around them soon screamed in horror as the titans grew yet again, their bodies swelling to newer sizes as they slowly turned around to properly face each other, swelling paws pummeling the breaking worlds around them.

And as panic erupted even stronger both around them and across every corner of the globe that was shown reports and streams of their fun, could furs only wonder when this all could end...or if it was naught but a nightmare.

But most realized the horrifying fact, that at the rate things were going, there would be no Earth left once they were done...

To be continued