

Teaching by Example

by Xenny Diemes

Pete is a close to middle-age male. Who through his own hard work and diligence, works for a reputable marine research institute as a fellow researcher in the field of marine macro-biology: The study of very large water-dwelling creatures. Most of his colleagues often ignore the one thing about Pete: He is heavily endowed, often at times strangers and shower-mates call him names like "Third-Leg Pete" or "The Bat" because of the size of his penis. But that doesn't let it bother him... much.

He then learns of the stories about a gigantic creature that roams the great oceans for decades often damaging ships either with its claws or flooding them to sink. He read all the witness accounts and even obscure drawings of it as a vicious monster. The hardest evidence of the beast's existence are the large pools of viscous goo that stretch for miles before disappearing the waters. Fascinated, he decided to search for the creature himself, just based on the latest sighting he got.

Unfortunately, his ship was caught up in a vicious storm and gets capsized. Pete thought he was a goner, until a large dark figure came and picked him up, but blacked out before he can get a better picture. Pete wakes up to find himself in a deep cave with a skylight surrounded by bones of whales and other creatures and trinkets like sunken ships and treasures. It looked very strange but he can't stay out of fear of who its owner is. But then out from the waters, it came. The beast was immense, green and powerfully muscular. Bearing a long, thick neck with spikes ran from the crest to the back of his neck and tail.

He carries with him is catch of food in a steel net that he uses as a tool, probably from the ships he brought down. Pete tries to hide but it was later proven useless because it can detect him by scent and his outstretched neck spotted him simply by looking over it. Pete comes out and looks more into the creature and he really is a towering hulk. Nothing however compared to the size of his genitals that sway and bounce heavily with each step. He drops the net and strangely offers him some fish or other sea food. He didn't want to hurt or eat him, instead he is friendly.

This was incredible for Pete for two reasons: one, he is not a deadly, terrifying beast as the illustrations and accounts say, but a simple, un-hostile being and the second reason. This creature has a really huge cock! Nearly as long as his legs and thick like an old-growth tree. Knowing that he won't be going anywhere for a while. Pete will do his best before any sign of help arrives. For five months, Pete and the creature spent some good times together and Pete keeps a journal of their experiences: The hunts, the play times, his protection from predators that roam the undiscovered island he calls home. But then he discovers something about the creature that really explains the part of the big pools of goo in the ocean. It was really his semen, Pete found out about this when he slept close to him and the creature was behaving erratically, shaking and notices that his penis is getting erect and eventually erupts, blowing his load to the ceiling, walls, all over the cave, Pete and himself before falling back to sleep.

This was not the only instance that this happened. The creature goes off when he hunts on land or the sea, when a school of fish he swam through also tickled his dick and came right into the water often blinding his view and even his attempts to stop where in vain when he tries to plug or beat his dick to stop the eruptions, all of which were useless to him. Pete wants to help but he couldn't figure out how since he doesn't know exactly how his species works, more days pass and the eruptions continue randomly. Meanwhile, Pete needed some personal time to clean himself up after all the stress and finds the closest waterfall, not too far from the cave to "relieve" himself.

The creature came around and sees Pete jerking off. After seeing him smile as he releases his seed in a long powerful blast. The creature sees this differently from his erratic and un-pleasurable ones. He figured he can try to do the same thing as well. As Pete finishes his time, he hears the aching cries of the creature attempting this feat. Pete stops and calms the creature down and tells him to put the rock he was about to bash his cock with down. With time and some cold waterfall water to heal. Pete musters up the strength to actually teach him how to do it right.

He sat on top of the creature's right shoulder and carefully shows him how its done by stroking his own thick cock. From there the creature imitates using both his hands. Seeing the strong and rough motion, Pete tells him to be gentle until he gets aroused. Which the creature is quick to reach to that part. Pete then tells him to go even faster which makes the creature even more excited as his raging cock grows fatter and throbs even more powerfully than ever before. Pete is also heavily aroused at the sight and size of that thing slowly drooling its precious white fluid. Before the two know it, they were jerking off like the wind and the two erupted. Pete's heavy ejaculation stretched far and over, dribbling over his balls and onto the creature's large pecs.

As for the creature himself...

He roars as his cock explodes it the force of an overdue volcano. Blowing out his thick cum in long, thick streams. His seed dribbles down the thick green shaft, over his gargantuan testicles and onto the rocky floor like slow moving lava. The creature lays back on the wall breathing heavily after each and last heavy blown load is released. Pete is exhausted too from giving such a heavy load himself. The creature playfully kisses him as a way of showing his thanks for teaching him this new method. Even better, he doesn't have those random eruptions ever since. No more mysterious white spots in the ocean or messes when he does his activities. He's more in control thanks to his little new friend.

Eventually Pete did get rescued and he thought he will never see the creature again. But that doesn't stop him from finding Pete eventually when he arrived at his shoreline home. From then on, Pete occasionally visits the creature's home and keeps it a well-kept secret to protect him. As for the creature their time together has sparked a keen interest in his finder. Since he might be the first of his kind and mating season might not be an option for him, the creature's growing attractiveness to Pete is getting close to sensual. Something he notices and doesn't mind for he is growing attracted to him as well.

What happens next, is a big one.